On May 23 at the Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community's Department of Corrections (DOC) facility, several inmates were recognized for taking the opportunity to make a positive change while incarcerated. Community members under DOC supervision graduating from the Rio Salado Reentry program were recognized for obtaining a college degree from Rio Salado Community College.

To start the awards ceremony, SRPMIC President Martin Harvier said a prayer and offered his congratulations to the four individuals receiving their diplomas. He said the Community will continue to support the graduates to do the best they can to make positive changes in their lives and the lives of those around them.

HOST Emergency Housing Opens Up in Community

Furnished HOST emergency housing units off of Montecito Drive and Country Club Drive.

CHRIS PICCIUOLO O'odham Action News

chris.picciuolo@srpmic-nsn.gov

On June 6, the Housing Opportunity Short Term (HOST) emergency housing development off Montecito and Country Club drives held an open house and ribbon-cutting ceremony to signify the completion of the construction of the housing units in the Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community.

At HOST, there will be two versions of 21 tiny homes; 10 single homes for one person each and 11 double homes for families. They are a safe, temporary housing option for Community members whose own homes have been damaged due to fire or storms or are otherwise temporarily uninhabitable. Members may stay in the units for a term of six months, with one possible six-month extension.

This latest housing project became increasingly important for Community members as families and individuals were affected by a devastating storm during the COVID-19 pandemic.

"This is now a place that we can utilize to help in those situations," said SRPMIC President Martin Harvier at the ribbon-cutting ceremony. "There are a lot of situations that come up, and ... it's very difficult to tell [Community members] that we don't have any emergency housing. Now, with this project being com-[here] today," said Leonard.

DOC Corrections Officer Danny Brown, who has been serving as a kind of mentor to the students, said that it was good to see leadership from the Community present at the graduation ceremony.

"I really credit [these] individuals that kept going on with their studies and going on with their journey through the turmoil that we all endured during that time," said Brown about the students' experiences throughout the COVID-19 pandemic and being incarcerated.

Brown said that, to him, the important part is to talk to the inmate-students and see where they are in their studies and what they are going through as individuals.

"I am really proud of them. I talk to them all the time, [encouraging them] to keep at it (their studies) so they don't fall off ... also so once they leave, they don't come back and start from square one," said Brown. According to Brown, the reentry program started in 2016 to give inmates an opportunity to further their education. "Sometimes [these] individuals are overlooked, or they have not been encouraged to do something they didn't think they could," said Brown.

The GED program allows incarcerated students to obtain their high school diploma and then, if they choose to, to enroll in the college program. Brown said individuals are sometimes apprehensive, but once they realize what they are capable of, they start to "take off." He said it is remarkable how much progress some of the students make, moving away from their previous activities and moving toward their education.

Higher Education Program Advisor Danielle Prieto said it was good to see the graduates meet their milestones. "There were times when they wanted to give up, but they [knew they could] do it," said Prieto, who said everyone has a hidden talent and that it is not too late to get a start on an education.

Graduate Mychal Osif, who received his certificate in Business Start-Up, thanked everyone for turning out for the graduation. "It feels so good to know that there are so many of you guys that really care about what [we] do ... it means a lot to me," said Osif.

He said it wasn't easy, but he thanked the staff for helping him with words of encouragement, as there were times when he felt like giving up. "I am at a point where I feel like I need a break, but then again I have to tell myself to keep pushing, because it is preparing me for when I get released," said Jackson.

Another student, Timothy Hill, said that the graduation was a surreal moment for him, because all he ever pictured himself doing was serving out his sentence. But taking college courses changed his self-perception and his ideas of what he could accomplish and obtain his Associates of Arts degree.

Hill said that although it is somewhat sad that he had to be incarcerated before he could see his potential, he knows that there are plenty of people who are there to help him and the other students get through their struggles.

"I really appreciate the officers as individuals, like Brown, who were helping me along the way when they didn't have to do it," said Hill.

As of now, Rio Salado Community College is the only educational institution in Arizona that offers college programs in the correctional system at the state, federal and tribal levels. According to Brown, even though a corrections facility may seem like an out-of-the-ordinary location for college education, it shows that the Community cares about the inmates and is not giving up on them.

Memorial Day Ceremony Honors Fallen Servicemembers

A solemn tribute to military men and women was hosted by the Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community's Veterans Services at the Lehi Cemetery on May 29. The ceremony brought together Community members and veterans to remember their family members and comrades in arms who made the ultimate sacrifice for American freedom.

The tribute was part of a series of Memorial Day activities organized by the Veterans Services Office, which included a flag-planting activity at the St. Francis, Salt River and Lehi cemeteries. The event also was a chance for Community leadership to reflect on those who gave their lives in service to the nation.

"We honor the sacrifices of fallen service members who put their lives on the line for our nation, for us and for the future generations of Americans," said SRPMIC Vice-President Ricardo Leonard.

Leonard said men and women who donned the uniforms of the armed forces answered the call to serve and defend their country with dedication, courage and selflessness. He recalled the bravery of servicemen and women during the Vietnam War, as this year marks the 50th anniversary of the withdrawal of U.S. military forces from Vietnam.

Leonard reminded those present about the countless instances when soldiers put their lives at risk to protect a fellow service member so they could make it out of the line of fire. Leonard said there are many stories within the Community of its service members taking heroic and honorable actions to protect this land and the people.

In conclusion, he asked that Community members take a little time out of their day to remember those fallen service members, share a story about them and put flowers on their gravesite to honor their sacrifices.

SRPMIC President Martin Harvier offered his thanks to the attendees for coming out in the early morning hours to pay tribute. He provided an overview of the history of Memorial Day, which was originally known as Decoration Day following the Civil War. It became federally recognized as Memorial Day in 1971.

President Harvier reminded those present about the meaning of Memorial Day, which is often taken for granted as simply a day off. But it is more meaningful to those families who lost a loved one in military service. "We hope that many of us remember those who paid the ultimate sacrifice, giving their lives in conflict for the freedoms that we enjoy," said Harvier.

Later, American Legion Post 114 "Bushmasters" members Garnet Gates and Alvin Lewis, both veterans from the Lehi Community, placed a wreath at the front of the Lehi Cemetery grounds to symbolize the Community's gratitude.

This was followed by a traditional Piipaash song by Lynwood Vest, who, along with his grandson, paid tribute to all service members, both living and deceased. Post 114 women's auxiliary member Doreen Atkinson Juan then presented a special reading of the "Poppy Poem," which is actually titled "In Flanders Fields," written by Canadian Army Physician Lieutenant-Colonel John McCrae for World War I.

This was followed by a 21-gun salute by members of Post 114 and a closing prayer led by Council Representative Deanna Scabby.

U.S. Coast Guard Meets with Community Representatives

USCG Chief Petty Officer Jeremy Crawford shares information on enlisted careers in the Coast Guard with SRPMIC veterans and leadership.

CHRISTOPHER LOMAHQUAHU

O'odham Action News Christopher.Lomahquahu@srpmic-nsn.gov

At the Two Waters complex on May 23, the Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community Veterans Services Office (VSO) hosted a special meet-and-greet with members of the United States Coast Guard, SRPMIC leadership and veterans. The VSO arranged the event so Coast Guard members could talk about careers among its enlisted and commissioned officer ranks.

According to SRPMIC Veterans Representative Amanda White, the Coast Guard reached out to the Community to share recruiting information. It was the first time that active members from a branch of the armed forces formally visited the Community to talk about recruitment initiatives and how to better approach tribes.

White said one of the goals is to bridge the gap between the armed forces and their recruiters in how they engage with tribal community members who are interested in military careers. She said branches like the USCG understand that there needs to be more Indigenous representation and ways to build connections with those who would like to learn more about the armed forces.

Representing the Coast Guard were Petty Officer Corylee Redhorse, a member of the Navajo Nation from Steamboat Canyon; Chief Petty Officer Jeremy Crawford, from the Albuquerque, New Mexico USCG recruitment office; and Danielle Stuterville, Boatswain Mate Second Class, also an Arizona native.

Each representative shared their unique story of how they enlisted into the service and how they are setting the example of minorities in uniform. When Redhorse enlisted, he was attending Fort Lewis College in Durango, Colorado, looking for his next adventure. He found it the Coast Guard, in which he has served for 10 years now.

Redhorse said that he has not met many Indigenous people in the Coast Guard, but he has interacted with others in other branches of the military. Redhorse said military service can be overlooked as a career option among tribal members, so he has taken it upon himself to educate and raise awareness about the Coast Guard in Native communities

Stuterville said her journey was similar. After graduating from Northern Arizona University with a business degree, Stuterville said her career interests changed direction. "When I graduated [from] college, I wanted to do something different than [the field] I went to school for," said Stuterville, who is considering reenlisting in the Coast Guard.

As both a female and a minority member in the Coast Guard, Stuterville has been offered more leadership roles, which she said gives her even more motivation to carry out her duties to the fullest. Looking back on her pathway to joining the Coast Guard, Stuterville said she has many people to thank, such as her immediate family and an uncle who helped her explore military options.

"They (USCG) give you an opportunity to figure out what you want to do while you are in ... that is the best deal in the world," said Stuterville. "You get paid to figure out what kind of job you want to do as you serve."

CPO Crawford provided an overview of the Coast Guard's structure, mission and the various careers available to the enlisted. Crawford said the Coast Guard, although a smaller force, is tasked with protecting the U.S. maritime borders against potential threats. This includes assisting with search-and-rescue operations to recover individuals lost at sea as well as offering disaster assistance.

He said 10% of the Coast Guard's operations fall outside of U.S. borders, such as members filling postings in other parts of the world as liaisons and other assistants. The Coast Guard is responsible for covering every square mile of U.S. coastline, from the Pacific Ocean to the Atlantic Ocean, also including large freshwater bodies like the Great Lakes.

Public Works Week Community Day Brings Awareness to Important Services

On May 23, about 100 people attended the Salt River Pima-Maricopa Public Works Community Day at the Salt River Community Building to join the department as they celebrated National Public Works Week (May 21-27).

The American Public Works Association announced that the theme for the 2023 week would be "Connecting the World Through Public Works."

SRPMIC Public Works Director Dawn Sinoqui said that the department put on the event so that more Community members would have a chance to learn about what services Public Works provides and allow Community customers to come out and meet some of the staff

"This was our first Community Day event, so I feel it went very well. My goal every year is that the event will continue to grow and have more handson educational demos," said Sinoqui. "I cannot thank all of our Public Works staff enough for the work they do each and every day. It takes a team to achieve and provide [this high level of] services to the Community. I'd also like to thank the executive administration and Tribal Council for the continued support they give our department."

In the parking lot, visitors were treated to an up-close look at Public Works vehicles on display, such as a backhoe and a side loader. Inside, there were a few different information booths from the many Public Works divisions.

Many Community members might not think about it, but Public Works provides a variety of important services to the Community and its members. For example, Public Works Parks maintains the landscaping of the five Community parks, along with Drainage & Irrigation.

Other Public Works divisions and projects that presented information at the event included the recycling program, transportation projects, bulk trash, the 10,000-square-foot Public Works warehouse, and Public Works Facilities, whose staff held a demonstration on how power outlets are installed and how they can protect you from severe electrical shocks.

Hot dogs and beverages were provided for visitors, who also had a chance

S'edav Va'aki Museum Opening NAGPRA Exhibition

BY CHRIS PICCIUOLO
O'odham Action News

chris.picciuolo@srpmic-nsn.gov

From June 22 through May 2024, the S'edav Va'aki Museum (formerly Pueblo Grande Museum and Archaeological Park) in Phoenix will be opening a new exhibition, Sending Their Ancestors Home, which explores the Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act (NAGPRA) of 1990 and its effects on both Native American culture and museum ethics

Visitors to the exhibition, which was funded by the S'edav Va'aki Museum Foundation, will have the chance to learn more about the history of this law, as well as how museums have taken strides to comply with—or dodge—the ramifications of this legislation, which urges museums and federal agencies to return certain cultural items, sacred tribal artifacts and human remains to their tribes of origin.

The exhibition will attempt to answer questions such as, "Where do museums and cultural institutions stand 30 years after NAG-PRA?" "What work is there still left to do?" and "How has this museum grown and taken accountability for acts of injustice?"

Adam Waltz, public information officer at the City of Phoenix, said that the original idea for the exhibition came from driving force Angela Garcia-Lewis, cultural preservation compliance supervisor for the Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community.

"She approached museum staff with the exhibit concept several years ago, and we began working with Angela and the rest of the consultation group in earnest last year," said Waltz. "We gave the consultation group monthly updates and they reviewed and gave input on all text panels, images used, and other exhibit elements."

Waltz said that the museum hopes to inform the visiting public about NAGPRA while also providing a space for respect and healing for the tribal communities.

"The panels are colorful, pulling inspiration from the colors of a sunrise, and images of creosote, palo verde and mesquite trees are used throughout," said Waltz. "As S'edav Va'aki Museum has grown and renewed its mission to honor the Community whose land we steward, so too we hope the greater visiting public will learn and grow after visiting the museum and this exhibition."

The exhibition was also created in close consultation with the Gila River Indian Community.

Federal Funding Will Assist Tribes with Clean Energy Needs

CHRISTOPHER LOMAHQUAHU
O'odham Action News

Christopher.Lomahquahu@srpmic-nsn.gov

Clean energy technologies are making their way to tribal communities with a boost from the U.S. Department of Energy (DOE). DOE Secretary Jennifer Granholm made a visit to Phoenix on May 23 to announce $34 million in funding for tribal clean energy projects across the country.

At the Heard Museum in Phoenix, Secretary Granholm held a meeting in coordination with the Inter Tribal Council of Arizona to discuss the funding of clean energy projects within tribal communities, which is spearheaded by the DOE's Office of Indian Energy Policy and Programs.

According to a press release from Secretary Granholm's office, "These select projects reflect the DOE's commitment to meet the climate crisis head on and guarantee tribal communities have access to electricity and clean energy technology."

The announcement identified 18 American Indian and Alaska Native tribes that will receive the clean energy funding. "These crucial investments support President Biden's goal of netzero carbon emissions by 2050 while ensuring American Indian and Alaska Native communities, many of whom are facing the most dire of consequences of climate change, will directly benefit from these investments, resulting in stronger, more resilient tribal nations," said Secretary Granholm in the press release.

These projects are estimated to result in more than nine megawatts of new clean energy generation and more than 6,700 megawatt-hours of battery stor-

On Tuesday, May 23rd, the Inter-Tribal Council of Arizona (ITCA) collaborated with Ms. Wahleah Johns, Director of the Office of Indian Energy Policy and Programs (IE), Department of Energy, to host the Tribal Energy Resilience Roundtable with Tribal Leaders in Arizona and Secretary Jennifer Granholm of the U.S. Department of Energy. age, the release said. The investments will impact 1,000 tribal buildings and save tribal communities more than $100 million over the life of the systems.

Of the 18 tribes funded through this initiative, three are from Arizona: the Hopi Tribe, the San Carlos Apache Tribe and the Navajo Nation.

The Hopi Utilities Corporation will receive funding to deploy a remote microgrid and microgrid controller to power four water pumps that provide water to the villages of Upper and Lower Moenkopi near Tuba City.

The San Carlos Apache Tribe will utilize the funding to add 750 kW of solar photovoltaics and a 500-kW battery energy storage system to its diesel generators to serve 36 residential buildings for the tribe's healthcare workers and five hospital buildings at the San Carlos Apache Healthcare Corporation community located just east of Peridot. It is expected to save the tribe close to $4 million over the lifetime of the project and also will assist the SCAHC when power outages occur.

In the case of the Navajo Nation, the funds will be used to install a solar-powered grid to provide energy to residential homes in the Ojo Encino Chapter in New Mexico. It is expected to offset 75% to 95% of the tribal residents' utility bills.

Emergency Management Highlight: MONSOON SEASON AWARENESS

BY TERRY NELSON, SRPMIC EMERGENCY MANAGEMENT COORDINATOR

Forecasting monsoon storms can be a challenge for meteorologists, but generally the monsoon season in Arizona begins on June 15 and runs through September 30, with storms possible at any time within that window.

Monsoon season in the Southwest region of the United States predominantly consists of summer heat building up atmospheric pressure that forces a shift in winds from the Pacific Ocean and Gulf of California. This change in wind patterns pushes moisture-holding air over the Southwest into Arizona, where it falls as rain—sometimes in a dramatic fashion.

During these unpredictable rain events, the Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community may experience high winds, lightning and large amounts of rainfall in a short period of time, which causes local flooding.

Your Emergency Management team would like to share some information to help you prepare for these unpredictable events.

Stay Informed

- Keep up to date on local news, weather watches and weather warnings.
- Be aware of communications tools used to obtain local weather information. National Weather Service: www.weather.gov/psr/
- Register your phone with an emergency notification system. https://maricoparegion911. onthealert.com/Terms
- Know how to obtain information for power outages through https://myaccount.srpnet. com/power/myaccount/outages.

Build a Kit

- Build an emergency "go kit" with supplies to last your family members, including your pets, for at least 72 hours.
- Consider any special needs or special equipment for family members, pets and livestock.
- Always have on hand flashlights and batteries, battery charger packs, battery-powered or hand-crank radios, tie down straps, etc.
- Consider supplies for both shelter-in-place and evacuation scenarios.

Have a Plan

- Make a family evacuation and communication plan.
- Consider your surroundings: Remove or secure items which may become airborne in high winds, and obtain sandbags to use in flood-prone areas of your residence and yard.
- Do not drive through dust storms or in flooded areas.
- Check on your neighbors, family, friends and elders.

Everyone should take these steps to prepare themselves and remain at a state of readiness to support individual resiliency.

For more information on monsoons and other steps you can take to be storm ready, contact SRPMIC Emergency Management at (480) 362-7929 or Terry.Nelson@srpmic-nsn.gov

- Create a communication and evacuation plan for your family
- Know your flood risk (visit floodsmart.gov)
- Check your property for overhanging trees

POWER OUTAGES

• Severe storms may cause power outages and other service interruptions. Purchase flashlights, battery powered radio, candles, and portable solar chargers for cell phones and laptops

TRAVEL SAFELY

- Turn Around, Don't Drown
- Don't cross roads with flowing waters
- During dust storms pull off the road, put your vehicle in park, and turn off lights

PREPARE A KIT

 Have enough food, water and other supplies to last for at least 72 hours. Local officials will be on the scene after a disaster but they cannot reach everyone immediately

Community Member and Husband Operate Tattoo Shop and Art Studio

CHRISTOPHER LOMAHQUAHU O'odham Action News

Christopher.Lomahquahu@srpmio

Sarah Edwards-Bradley, a Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community member from the Lehi Community, and her husband Kevin Bradley Jr. together operate Sea of Ink Tattoo Studio, which is located on Main Street just east of Val Vista Drive in Mesa.

We spoke with Bradley, while the couple was on the road heading to an art tattoo expo in Texas. She talked about how tattoos and an artistic vision came together to form this unique tattoo studio with her husband.

What was your main influence for getting tattoos?

Bradley said, "I personally have only a few tattoos, and each has its own special meaning to me. My husband Kevin, master tattoo artist of the studio, has a full body of tattoos that represent his outgoing, fun, charismatic character." She said tattoos are [a medium of] expression, [whether it's] one small tattoo or a full body.

How did you get started in tattooing as an artform/profession?

I focus on my art through painting and drawing, which has always been a favorite pastime for me, even as a child. Together we have made a successful tattoo/art studio that we call Sea of Ink Tattoo Studio.

What are the common themes for your tattoos?

Much of the tattoos created at Sea of Ink, consists of realism, portraits and vibrant colors. Bradley and her husband's artistic vision have led to several accolades, such as the [Arizona Foothills magazine named Kevin the Best Tattoo Artist in the Valley for 2020, 2021 and 2022.] "Sea of Ink's gallery wall is made up of many different artistic [themes] which are ever-changing as the art pieces are sold to the public," said Bradley.

Now that you operate a tattoo shop, what have you learned from being in the business?

A tattoo shop is like any other business. One must do their due diligence, maintain proper business education, and keep in mind that a service is being provided, so customer care is important.

Bradley added that for many who consider opening a tattoo business, should work in a tattoo shop and get an idea of how the business is run in order to see if it is feasible for them.

What is your advice for those interested in getting into tattooing?

Each shop has its own stipulations; as for Sea of Ink, we require an inquiring apprentice to be proficient in art. [They should] make art, in whatever medium they are interested in. If you can make art, you are on your way to being able to hold your value as a future tattoo

What is your advice for individuals who want to start their own tattoo

We believe that if you are thinking about opening your own shop, you should already be an accomplished artist. Just as with any other employment position, one must put in the effort and time. At this stage, [future tattoo shop owners] should be aware of all the different [aspects of] this industry and make sure that they have the capability to go above and beyond what is expected. Think about what you provide for your community. Some situations and lifestyles don't call for opening a shop; tattoo artists are already independent, and the industry is small, so working at an established tattoo shop with other artists can be an amazing experience. Together, a team of artists can accomplish great things.

What is your advice to customers for choosing a tattoo artist?

We get a massive amount of people who want "cover-up" tattoos. Why? Because they don't want to pay high dollar for a good artist, or they don't want to wait for an appointment to open up for a good artist. In the past few years, Arizona has seen many new tattoo shops and tattoo artists, some who are quite skilled and others who are not. We recommend doing your research on the artist. What does their work look like? What does the shop look like? At Sea of Ink Tattoo Studio, we begin with personal consultations so that the client and artist can have a one-on-one conversation to see if they are the right choice for the tattoo project.

Sea of Ink Tattoo Studio is located at 4022 E. Main St. in Mesa. For more information, call (480) 830-9237.

SRPMIC Gets Recognition to Implement Tighter Water Quality Standards

CHRISTOPHER LOMAHQUAHU
O'odham Action News

Christopher.Lomahquahu@srpmic-nsn.gov

The Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community's Community Development Department (CDD), Environmental Protection and Natural Resources Division (EPNR), received important recognition from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) certifying the Community's ability to implement high-level water testing requirements.

According to Regina Leverette Mason, SRPMIC Senior Environmental Engineer, this status is called Treatment as a State (TAS). The EPA granted the authority to SRPMIC and other participating tribes to carry out the same standard of water treatment and monitoring done at the state level under the Clean Water Act Section 303(c) and 401 program

Last month, EPA Regional Administrator Martha Guzman presented the Community with an award certifying its TAS status at an EPA Region 9 meeting in San Francisco, California. SRPMIC President Martin Harvier and Assistant Community Manager Doran Dalton attended the meeting, along with Mason, Senior Environmental Engineer Jeremy Phillips, and Christopher Horan, assistant director for the CDD/EPNR Division.

In a synopsis, "Water quality standards fall under Section 303(c) of the Clean Water Act and provide the regulatory framework for protecting the Tribe's surface waters. SRPMIC can have water quality standards that are more stringent than state or federal standards," including the ability to secure federal grant funding for its water quality programs.

This also means that the water quality standards for certain contaminants are more stringent than the state's, which puts the Community at an advantage when it comes to being a leader in water quality standards.

In information provided by Mason, the TAS status permits "SRPMIC to have more control over the protection of the Community's rivers to ensure they are safe for many generations to come; and due to the complexities of where the Community is located, surrounded by different municipalities, there is much potential for pollution to the Community's waters."

Mason said the process to be granted

TAS status was a lengthy one that took diligent work from both the Community and the EPA.

"In the past it was taking the EPA roughly six years to approve a tribe's application, but they have streamlined that part a bit However, it did take us longer than needed, partly due to the COVID-19 pandemic," said Mason.

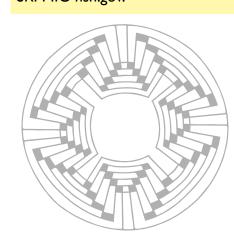

She said the TAS permissions give greater authority to the Community regarding waterways like the Verde River and Salt River, which are historically tied to the Community.

"It allows us to be the ones doing the work on the ground, because we are observing things that are happening in these waterways," said Mason.

Hiking Club Ends Year With Trip to Bryce Canyon

BY CHRIS PICCIUOLO

O'odham Action News chris.picciuolo@srpmic-nsn.gov

From May 22 to 24, the Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community's Hiking Club traveled to Bryce Canyon National Park in Utah for their end-ofthe-year trip.

Ten names were drawn at random to go on the trip. SRPMIC Recreation Coordinator II Kevin Riding-In said he chose the location because it is not too far away and offers amazing scenery.

With the van loaded up with their hiking and camping gear, the group headed out. They stopped at Horseshoe Bend along the way to Bryce Canyon. Horseshoe Bend is a horseshoe-shaped loop of the Colorado River in Glen Canyon National Recreation Area near Page.

Riding-In said the group's campsite in Bryce Canyon National Park was nice, and it had the luxury of showers.

On the way back home, the group stopped at Antelope Canyon, the slot canyon on the Navajo Nation that is one of the tribe's most popular tourist attractions. Accessing Antelope Canyon requires people to negotiate several flights of stairs and climb up and down ladders.

along the group has come," said Riding-In. "They were faced with many challenges this year and overcame them."

History of the Salt River Wild Horses

Submitted by SRPMIC Environmental Protection & Natural Resources, Community Development Department

The Salt River wild horses have lived on the Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community since at least the 1700s. Horses were brought to North America by early Spanish conquistadors in the 1500s; the Salt River wild horses are descendants of these Spanish horses. They are a Spanish Barb horse that stands around 14.2 hands high and weighs about 800 pounds. (Horse height is measured in hands, with 1 hand equal to 4 inches.) Today this is considered a small horse, almost pony size. But the Spaniards of 500 years ago were smaller too, with an average height of 5 feet, 3 inches and an average weight of 120 pounds. The Spanish Barb is a perfect horse for someone of that height and weight.

During the 1500s and 1600s, European explorers brought many domestic horses to North America. The escaped, stolen and stray horses established large wild herds. Native Americans quickly realized the benefits of owning horses, and not just as a source of food and hide like deer, elk or bison. Horses allowed new methods of hunting, warfare and transportation, as well as creating new standards of wealth. Horses changed Native American life and became an important part of tribal cultures.

Today, SRPMIC tribal law protects wild horses from capture, harassment or starvation. However, the horses can be legally adopted! The process for adopting a Salt River wild horse is not difficult and takes about a year. Adoption includes a 12-month trial ownership period to ensure that the horse goes to a good forever home. If both horse and owner are happy

Must be 21 years of age or older to attend. Management reserves all rights.

One of our most successful wild horse adopters are the professional mustang trainers Isidro and Amber Espinoza of Isidro Espinoza Horsemanship in Snowflake, Arizona. Through their international connections, Amber and Isidro even sent one of our trained Salt River tribal wild horses to Finland! O'odham Action News has a full article on this remarkable story in the Feb. 3, 2021, issue. Included are new photos from Finland, showing how the horse was able to adapt to the cold Finnish winters after leaving our extreme desert heat.

Farewell Dance For Outgoing Miss Salt River Court

BY CHRIS PICCIUOLO O'odham Action News chris.picciuolo@srpmic-nsn.gov

On May 27, the Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community's Miss Salt River Committee held a Farewell Dance for the outgoing Miss Salt River Court.

The event was held at the Salt River Pi-Copa Gym at the Community Building, where many families showed up to see the Court dance, give away prizes and talk about their reigns over the past year.

"Throughout my reign, this has been a learning experience, as this is my first title. It was such an amazing opportunity to be able to represent the Community, my family and myself," said Junior Miss Salt River 2022-2023 Tirsa Reina.

Tirsa's sister, Miss Salt River 2022-2023 Nani Reina, was brought to tears at the end of the dance as she thanked the visiting royalty, the singers and the Miss Salt River Committee.

"Thank you so much to the Community for allowing me to be Miss Salt River this year," said Reina. "It has been a huge honor, and I am very proud of each one of these girls for being beside me and having the honor to represent ourselves, our family, and most importantly, the people of Salt River."

The outgoing first attendants are Kenda Percy (First Attendant to Miss Salt River) and Aiyanah Lerma (First Attendant to Jr. Miss Salt River).

For the dance, the Court gathered around gourd dancers and singers on the dance floor while visiting royalty, families and friends joined in.

Senior Services Director Melvin Deer Studies in Japan

BY CHRIS PICCIUOLO
O'odham Action News
chris.picciuolo@srpmic-nsn.gov

Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community Senior Services Director Melvin Deer recently got the chance of a lifetime to study in Japan. He attended a field seminar in the international business graduate curriculum of the Executive Master of Global Management (EMGM) degree program at the Thunderbird School of Global Management at Arizona State University.

In early March, Deer traveled to the country as part of a cohort of students and full-time working professionals in the degree program. They stayed in Japan for a week and gained hands-on experience learning from alumni of the program who are now CEOs of their own companies in Tokyo.

The alumni provided insight into international business practices in the whole pan-Pacific region. Deer said he learned to assess, analyze and develop business strategies in an international context through the seminar.

The students were divided into groups, and at the end of the week, each group had to develop and pitch a business opportunity based on everything they had experienced at the companies they visited, as well as the economy and culture of Japan.

"The group I was in won! We were a team of three," said Deer. "I won't go into the whole presentation, but I'll say that it involved me [becoming] an anime character of myself to support our proposition."

In all, the Thunderbird group visited with seven Japanese companies.

Deer said that he could have taken another elective at ASU's Downtown Phoenix campus, but he could not pass up the opportunity to study in Japan.

"I'm more self-aware about cross-cultural communication and management," said Deer. "I have a greater understanding of the international market, marketing, finance and accounting, supply-chain and operational management on a global scale. But most important to me is the networking and global connections I've made with this program, along with the development of an entrepreneurial mindset and an innovative approach to business."

While in Japan, Deer experienced the food, the culture, the people and the city of Tokyo.

"The food was some of the best I've had," said Deer. "You can't find a bad meal if you try. And the coffee was superb. The Japanese take great care to ensure quality in everything they do. Respect and cordiality are [part of] everything they do."

Deer also made a memorable visit to Japanese entertainment conglomerate Yoshimoto Kogyo. "It was interesting to learn about Japan's media and entertainment history, how it currently works and how it is structured.

"I was [in Japan] for seven days and am already planning my next trip back," he said.

Deer will graduate from the program in July.

Mr. Steve Hodgson is currently temporarily excluded from the boundaries of the SRPMIC due to allegations of drug trafficking, fleeing from police and traffic violations.

The Community's Exclusion Committee has scheduled a hearing to consider whether Mr. Steve Hodgson should be permanently excluded from the SPRMIC at 2:00 p.m. on Tuesday, July 18, 2023 in Courtroom #7 at the SRP-MIC Justice Center at 10040 East Osborn Road, Scottsdale, Arizona 85256.

May 4, 2023

This serves as notice that the Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community ("SRPMIC") Council pursuant to Article VII, §1(g) of the SRPMIC Constitution and Sections 7-72 through 7-75 of the SRPMIC Code of Ordinances decided on May 3, 2023 at a regularly scheduled Council Meeting to permanently exclude Mr. Rodriguez from the boundaries of the SRPMIC. On April 11, 2023, the Exclusion Committee held a hearing and determined that Mr. Rodriguez was a non-member whose presence is detrimental to the peace, health or morals of the SRPMIC due to allegations of sexual assault, physical assault, domestic violence, drug and alcohol offenses, and fleeing the police.

Summary of Proposed Ordinances for Restorative Justice

Public Comment Period June 8, 2023 - August 8, 2023

On June 7, 2023, the Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community Council authorized a sixty (60) day public comment period for the proposed amendments relating to restorative justice. The draft ordinances seek to better equip the Community's criminal justice system to offer opportunities for alternative resolution of criminal charges where possible, and where not possible, to offer rehabilitative options for those who are incarcerated.

The draft statutory changes propose the following changes:

- Statutory creation of both adult and juvenile wellness courts. Currently, there is no wellness court for adult defendants, and juvenile wellness court operates based off a resolution that is a bit outdated. This new section would create a statutory basis not only for juvenile wellness court, but also for the future development of an adult wellness court.
- An update to Chapter 8 that would allow incarceration time to be served at a residential treatment center, provided certain conditions are met. This would allow a second chance for those cases where incarceration is unavoidable, but the defendant still desires a positive change.
- An update to the Rules of Criminal Procedure that would allow for a Status Hearing or Change of Plea Hearing to be set immediately following Arraignment, rather than requiring that all cases be set for trial. Such a change would permit the parties an opportunity to discuss a case and develop the best outcome for each individual defendant, without a trial being set. This increases the efficiency of the Community Court and also benefits both defendants and crime victims.
- An update to the Rules of Criminal Procedure that would allow for adults to be placed on deferred prosecution prior to the filing of a Criminal Complaint. The juvenile code currently allows minors to be placed on diversion without requiring prosecutors to file charges first, but this same benefit does not apply to adults. If passed, this code section would allow adults to complete terms of deferred prosecution and avoid having any charges filed at all, which means they may not face some negative consequences such as loss of their employment or housing.
- An addition to Chapter 8 that would allow for expungement of certain criminal convictions, provided certain conditions are met. In probably the most consequential proposed change in the packet, this code amendment would create an entirely new code section that would allow qualifying defendants to have their criminal convictions sealed. There are certain requirements that must be met and time limits that apply, but those who have been convicted of crimes such as possession of marijuana, which has now been legalized, could apply immediately for sealing of such criminal convictions.

The full text of the proposed ordinances can be found at: https://www.srpmic-nsn.gov/government/ogc/proposed-ordinances/ Please submit all comments in writing either to the Community's intranet "Ordinance Public Comment" page, or via standard mail or email to the following:
