With COVID-19 cases reaching new heights in the Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community, and in the U.S. as a whole, O'dham Action News reached out to Community members and the SRPMIC Health and Human Services (HHS) Department to get a better understanding of what this next phase in the pandemic is looking like.

In a very short time, the HHS said, the highly infectious omicron COVID-19 variant has upended many aspects of our lives. Both Arizona and Maricopa County are seeing record numbers of infections, and testing is once again in great demand. Luckily, although it is more contagious than the delta variant of COVID-19, omicron appears to cause milder illness in many people.

As of January 11, there were 16 cases with the omicron variant in the Community. Of the Community member population in Arizona, 35% of 17 years and under are vaccinated, 52% of 18-59 years are vaccinated, 87% of 60 years and older are vaccinated, and over 5,000 members are unvaccinated (enrolled members residing in Arizona).

As COVID Fueled the Drug Crisis, Native Americans Hit Worst

The medicine man told her she should soon give her son back to the earth. Rachel Taylor kissed her fingertips and pressed them to the crow sewn onto a leather bag nestled on the couch in the living room. "Oh, my baby," she whispered, and hugged the buckskin satchel filled with his ashes. On January 11 a year ago, she had opened his bedroom door and screamed so loud she woke the neighbor. Kyle Domrese was face down on his bed, one of more than 100,000 Americans lost in a year to overdoses as the COVID-19 pandemic fueled America's addiction disaster. When he was 4, the medicine man had given him his Ojibwe name: Aandegoons—"little crow." She traced the outline of the black bird on the sack.

"Love you," Taylor said to the bag, as she does each time she leaves for work from her home in Bemidji, a city surrounded by three Ojibwe reservations in remote northern Minnesota.

As the pandemic ravaged the country, deaths from drug overdoses surged by nearly 30%, climbing to a record high. The drug crisis has also diversified from an overwhelmingly white affliction to killing people of color with staggering speed. The death rate last year was highest among Native Americans,

Westwood High School Senior Scores 1,000 Points

Westwood High School senior Nyese Jones hits 1,000+ points in her high school career on Tuesday, January 4.

BY TASHA SILVERHORN

On Tuesday, January 4, the Westwood High School girls basketball team went head-to-head with rival Mountain View High School. But this was not just a regular basketball game; it was a milestone for one player in particular, Westwood High School senior Nyese Jones. Jones hit the first 3-pointer of the game, which pushed her over the 1,000-point mark in her school basketball career. She actually only needed two points to log an even 1,000. Once she hit that shot, the game was halted so the team and the spectators could celebrate Jones' amazing accomplishment.

The game then resumed, with the starting five players including Jones and other Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community members Kristine Scabby (junior), Alexis Smith (junior) and Angelina Montoya (sophomore). The Lady Warriors beat the Toros 54-45. The team overall is 13-3 and is hoping to make it to the final four this year and ultimately the championship game in Division 6A.

Jones was the second Lady Warrior to hit 1,000 points, but she is the first to score all 1,000

A Personal COVID-19 Experience and Advice From Experts

One Community Member’s Experience

Speaking on condition of anonymity, one Community member, who is vaccinated, said that they currently open their home only to immediate family members due to the conditions of the pandemic. However, these family members live in different houses and some are not vaccinated.

On Christmas Day, their immediate family of 15.5 persons, which includes eight adults, seven children and one infant, gathered at one home to celebrate the holiday. Of those family members, five adults and two of the children were vaccinated at the time.

Unfortunately, the gathering turned out to be an infectious event during which the COVID-19 virus could have quickly spread to others, as the Community member said that they and others developed symptoms of the virus shortly afterward.

“Once our immediate families were informed that we were exposed, all households went into quarantine,” said the Community member.

“My household was the second to be affected with COVID. You feel for your family and the children that are affected and pray they will be okay, especially for those who are not vaccinated and the smaller children who are not able to be vaccinated. Thankfully, I didn’t make any other visits during the holiday, I primarily remained home.”

Even though the Community member used hand sanitizer and frequently washed their hands, they felt like they let their guard down.

“After the fact, I realized that close family members living in their own homes and visiting does pose risks.”

Their first symptom was a slight headache, but they did not think much of it due to the weather change and it being the holidays. At 3 a.m. on New Year’s Day, without any warning, the headache became worse and was accompanied by body aches and chills. The symptoms lasted 24 hours, followed by minor congestion. Over-the-counter medications helped, they said, and they knew it was COVID-19 as the symptoms did not relate to a cold, flu or allergies.

“I truly believe the vaccination helped curb what could have been a longer illness,” they said.

“Get vaccinated; don’t wait until it hits home. Get tested if you have been exposed or begin to feel symptoms. Continue to practice preventive measures, including wearing a face mask, and don’t let your guard down. Be considerate with the well-being of others, including those who are vulnerable. Continue safety precautions; the virus can be picked up anywhere from anyone.”

What the Experts Recommend

“If you have COVID-19 symptoms, it is better to err on the side of caution and quarantine until you can get tested,” advised Brad Pollock, Ph.D., MPH, FACE, an epidemiologist and professor and chair of the Department of Public Health Sciences at UC Davis School of Medicine.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) recommends that you get tested five to seven days after “close contact with a person with suspected or confirmed COVID-19.” The CDC defines close contact as being less than 6 feet away from an infected person for a total of 15 minutes or more over a 24-hour period, with or without a mask.

All of the COVID variants, including delta and omicron, cause similar symptoms, which may include cough, fever and fatigue.

Lorena Garcia, MPH, Dr.PH, epidemiologist and professor in the Department of Public Health Sciences at UC Davis School of Medicine, noted that omicron symptoms are about the same as those of the delta COVID variant, but a person’s experience may vary greatly depending on whether they’re vaccinated. “In those that are fully vaccinated and boosted, symptoms tend to be mild. In contrast, if an individual is unvaccinated, symptoms can be quite severe, resulting in hospitalization or even death,” Garcia said.

Dr. Garcia said that the viral load is much higher in omicron, which means that someone infected with the omicron variant is more infectious than someone infected with the delta variant.

Dean Blumberg, M.D., chief of pediatric infectious diseases at UC Davis Children’s Hospital, noted that the vaccines are not 100% effective and breakthrough infections may occur. “However, if you’ve had COVID-19 and are then vaccinated, this decreases your chance of reinfection by about half.”

It appears that the first-line preventive measures of social distancing and wearing a mask should continue, as they are proving effective to help avoid spread of the omicron variant. “Everyone should be masking when indoors around anyone not in their household, as well as in crowded areas outdoors where it is impossible to socially distance, like sporting events,” Blumberg said.

As for wearing masks to protect yourself from spreading or getting the virus, Dr. Blumberg said that some studies suggest that cloth masks are only about 50% effective, compared with effectiveness rates of 60% to 70% for surgical masks and 95% for N95 masks.

For more information, see the Q&A on page 12.

How can I protect my unvaccinated family members?

- Get vaccinated yourself. COVID-19 vaccines reduce the risk of people getting COVID-19 and can also reduce the risk of spreading it.
- Be sure to get everyone in your family who is 5 years or older vaccinated against COVID-19.
- Wear a mask.
- To maximize protection from the virus that causes COVID-19 and prevent possibly spreading it to others, have everyone in your family, even those who are vaccinated, wear a mask indoors in public if you are in an area of substantial or high transmission.
- You might choose to have everyone in your family, even those who are vaccinated, wear a mask indoors in public regardless of the level of transmission in your area.
- Unvaccinated family members, including children ages 2 years and older, should wear a mask in all indoor public settings.
- To set an example, you also might choose to wear a mask.
- Do NOT put a mask on children younger than 2 years old.

COVID-19 MYTHS VS FACTS

MYTH

THE INGREDIENTS IN COVID-19 VACCINES ARE DANGEROUS.

COVID-19 VACCINES CAUSE VARIANTS.

RECEIVING A COVID-19 VACCINE CAN MAKE YOU MAGNETIC.

THE MRNA VACCINE IS NOT CONSIDERED A VACCINE.

ALL EVENTS REPORTED TO THE VACCINE ADVERSE EVENT REPORTING SYSTEM (VAERS) ARE CAUSED BY VACCINATION.

FACT

Nearly all the ingredients in COVID-19 vaccines are also ingredients in many foods – fats, sugars, and salts.

COVID-19 vaccines do not create or cause variants of the virus that causes COVID-19. Instead, COVID-19 vaccines can help prevent new variants from emerging.

Receiving a COVID-19 vaccine will not make you magnetic, including at the site of vaccination which is usually your arm.

mRNA vaccines, such as Pfizer-BioNTech and Moderna, work differently than other types of vaccines, but they still trigger an immune response inside your body.

Anyone can report events to VAERS, even if it is not clear whether a vaccine caused the problem. Because of this, VAERS data alone cannot determine if the reported adverse event was caused by a COVID-19 vaccination.

MYTH

A COVID-19 VACCINE CAN MAKE ME SICK WITH COVID-19.

COVID-19 VACCINES CAN ALTER MY DNA.

THE NATURAL IMMUNITY I GET FROM BEING SICK WITH COVID-19 IS BETTER THAN THE IMMUNITY I GET FROM COVID-19 VACCINATION.

COVID-19 VACCINES CONTAIN MICROCHIPS.

COVID-19 VACCINES AUTHORIZED FOR USE IN THE UNITED STATES SHED OR RELEASE THEIR COMPONENTS.

FACT

Because none of the authorized COVID-19 vaccines in the United States contain the live virus that causes COVID-19, the vaccine cannot make you sick with COVID-19.

COVID-19 vaccines do not change or interact with your DNA in any way.

Getting a COVID-19 vaccination is a safer and more dependable way to build immunity to COVID-19 than getting sick with COVID-19.

COVID-19 vaccines do not contain microchips. Vaccines are developed to fight against disease and are not administered to track your movement.

Vaccine shedding is the release or discharge of any of the vaccine components in or outside of the body and can only occur when a vaccine contains a live weakened version of the virus.

TRIBAL GOVERNMENT SERVICE OPERATIONS

PHASE 1.5 – RETURN STRONG – January 14, 2022

The Salt River Indian Community and its Enterprises will continue providing services in a manner that is safe for the employees, safe for its Community Members, and safe for customers/vendors doing business with the Community and their Enterprises. The health and well-being of all entities are important to the Community leadership.

On January 14, 2022 SRPMIC Government service operations will transition to a modified Phase 1.5 providing limited on-site service by appointment only. All persons providing services, or otherwise conducting business, at a Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community (SRPMIC) facility are required to provide their own facemask and wear it while on premises. Face masks will be required while visiting a Community office building and social distancing will be enforced. SRPMIC will continue to monitor its transitions and the defined Trigger Points during Phase 1.5 to guide decisions to modify restrictions.

Additional Phase 1.5 directives:

- * Virtual Council Meetings
- * Virtual District Meetings
- * Government buildings closed to the public, services by appointment only
- * Some staff may telework per authorized policy and procedures
- * Memorial Hall & XPN buildings closed to the public, use of courtyard open
- * Way of Live Facility (WOLF) closed to the public
- * Gymnasiums closed to the public
- * Neighborhood Centers closed to the public
- * Round House Cafe open to take out orders only
- * Parks open to the public
- * Ballfields open to the public

Please call departments to verify service options:

- * Call the department phone number to make an appointment.
- * Customers will be met at the building entry and escorted to their appointment.
- * Customers will be escorted out when services are completed.
- * Facemasks required
- * Social distancing practiced

points while playing on the Westwood team. Jones, who has been playing and starting since she was a freshman, recently set a new school record for assists in a single game with 11, in the game against Palo Verde High Magnet School.

“It was pretty awesome. She has been building towards [1,000 points for] the better part of four seasons. She has been an instant impact player; she and Nikkianna Kinsel, who is our other senior, they’re the only two girls in Westwood’s history to have 200+ points in their first three seasons,” said coach Ron Compton. “We knew it was a possibility going in this year, and Ny has just kind of stepped up her game. Her 22 points tonight really helped lead and carry us. That was a really good thing to see her get that 1,000-point accomplishment. We have 11 more games to build on it, so she’ll just keep stretching that mark out a little bit each game.”

Kinsel will be the next Lady Warrior to reach the 1,000-point milestone; currently she is only 110 points away. Compton explained that Scabby and Montoya could hit 1,000-points in their high school careers as well.

“They are both pacing with development over the next two years to continue to improve. We hope to see them set a couple of records after the seniors leave,” said Compton. “It’s been a good year, and we have a lot of girls to help elevate the program to where we are now.”

Jones was all smiles after the game as her family and friends congratulated her on her achievement.

“My next goal I want to meet is the assist goal. I am over 800 and I want to hit 1,000 before the season is over,” said Jones.

New At-Home COVID-19 Test Now Available to the Public

Flowflex COVID-19 Antigen Home Test was a simple and easy rapid test that detects COVID-19 antigens in a nasal swab specimens.

BY TASHA SILVERHORN
O'odham Action News
tasha.silverhorn2@srpmic-nsn.gov

At the start of the new year, the Biden-Harris Administration brought two new over-the-counter, at-home COVID-19 tests to the U.S. market. These non-prescription tests help detect nucleocapsid protein antigen from SARS-CoV-2 with a self-collected anterior nasal swab sample.

These tests can come in handy if you want to be sure you do not have the COVID-19 virus to prevent spreading it to others. The polymerase chain reaction (PCR) test is done at testing facilities and hospitals and is far more sensitive than antigen tests. The PCR test is able to detect the virus in smaller quantities and sooner than the antigen tests. If an at-home test comes up positive, it is unnecessary to take a PCR test. If you have symptoms of COVID-19 and test negative on an antigen home test, the result should be confirmed with a PCR test.

The new at-home tests have been flying off the shelves at local stores such as Walmart, Walgreens and CVS. These tests are one use only and come one or two tests per package; they cost anywhere from $9.99 to $23.99.

On January 6, the White House was finalizing details with the U.S. Postal Service for delivering 500 million COVID-19 test kits to households across the country after the surge of positive cases of the omicron variant. Americans will be able to request test kits through a website and receive them via the U.S. Postal Service.

Note: If your at-home test does come back positive, please notify the epidemiology team by calling the COVID Hotline at (480) 362-2603. This will help keep an accurate count of Covid-19 cases in the Community.

As COVID Fueled the Drug Crisis, Native Americans Hit Worst

for whom COVID-19 piled yet more despair on communities already confronting generations of trauma, poverty, unemployment and underfunded health systems.

It is no longer an opioid epidemic, but one in which people are dying from deadly cocktails of many drugs. Deaths involving methamphetamine have nearly tripled in recent years, with Native Americans 12 times more likely to die from it.

As Taylor began her shift at the Northwest Indian Community Development Center, a posterboard propped against the wall was pasted with 49 faces—a collage of their dead to drugs.

Taylor’s tribe, the White Earth Nation, studied the lives they’ve lost to addiction.

“Their death certificates say they died of an overdose, but that’s not right,” one member of their study group said.

These deaths were a culmination of far more than that: Despite their resilience, Native Americans carry in their blood 500 years worth of pain from being robbed of their land, their language, their culture, their children. In living people’s memory, children were taken from their families and sent to boarding schools with the motto, “Kill the Indian, save the man.”

“What they died of is a broken heart,” the study says.

For years, Taylor tried to break the cycle.

Her grandmother was sent to a Christian boarding school, where she was taught to be so ashamed of her Ojibwe language that she would only speak or sing it after drinking.

Taylor had her daughter when she was 19 and her son a few years later. She lost custody of them for a couple years as she battled her own addiction to opioids and cocaine. She told them she wished she could fix all the dysfunctional things that happened when she was using.

“Then I thought, well, then my mom would have to go back and fix things, and then my grandma would have to go back, it would have to go on like that for generations,” she said.

Taylor had lived in more than 50 places before she turned 18—foster homes, battered-women’s shelters, on the streets—and faced sexual, physical and mental abuse.

“The things I blame on generational trauma are not feeling good enough, not feeling worthy enough, not feeling loved,” she said.

She prayed to her creator to spare her children, and she told her son every day that she loved him.

White Earth Nation too worked hard to save its people from addiction, and many years lost no one to overdoses on the reservation. But then the pandemic arrived and proved too painful for some.

And now in Taylor’s shaking hands, she holds her son’s picture—another face for the posterboard, lost January 11, 2021.

At first, she put his ashes in an urn, but it was sharp metal. A friend made the buckskin bag that she could hug. It became the center of her world.

The White Earth reservation spans more than 800,000 rugged acres of prairie and lakes. But despite the vast terrain, it’s sparsely populated, and they live the belief that all should be loved like family.

Rachel Taylor’s son once wrote her a letter because he thought his addiction was killing him: “I can’t control it. I hope you can forgive me. I’m sorry, I love you, I wanted to spend more time with you.”

He’d started abusing pills as a teenager when he got a prescription after having surgery for an infected finger. Then, consumed by the madness of addiction, he would smoke anything—methamphetamine, heroin, fentanyl—that might quiet his lifelong anxiety and depression.

But just before the pandemic bore down, his mother felt hopeful.

It is no longer an opioid epidemic, but one in which people are dying from deadly cocktails of many drugs. Deaths involving methamphetamine have nearly tripled in recent years, with Native Americans 12 times more likely to die from it.

She and her son quarantined together at her home in Bemidji, a city of 15,000 people. Her son had gone to treatment, sober 168 days. His cheeks were full again, and he asked her to make his favorite peanut butter cookies.

“I’m glad I still have a chance to make my loving mom proud,” he wrote in a journal.

But the months dragged on, and he told her it seemed like the pandemic would never end. He couldn’t get a job. He was isolated. He said he felt like a bum.

“He just gave up,” she said. He started using again, then dealing drugs to support his habit.

All around them, people were dying. On the White Earth reservation, ambulance calls for overdoses tripled, said Dr. Carson Gardner, the medical director of White Earth Nation’s health department. They posted big red signs in gas stations and tribal buildings: “Overdose Alert,” they said. “Please look out for each other.”

Joe Kleszyk, the commander of the region’s drug task force, sounded the alarm, too: “An epidemic within a pandemic,” he told the local newspaper in August 2020. The task force covers five counties and two reservations, including White Earth.

The number of overdoses it investigated skyrocketed from 20 in 2019 to 88 in 2020. Fifteen of those were fatal, triple the year before.

It’s getting worse: In 2021 there were 148 overdoses, and 24 of those victims died.

In Minnesota, as across the country, drug dealers now cut nearly every drug on the street with fentanyl, a cheap and deadly synthetic opioid so potent the equivalent of a sugar packet can make 40 doses, Kleszyk said. “It’s a game of Russian roulette,” he said.

At the same time, the pandemic pushed many toward addiction, called a “disease of despair.”

Unemployment in Indian Country surged to 26%. And with the federal government’s disinvestment in Native communities, many were already living on the brink of poverty—sometimes just across the street from predominantly white gated communities and summer vacation resorts.

On top of that, the healing traditions many turn to in troubled times, like sweat lodges and talking circles, were suspended. Theirs is a communal culture, and people were suddenly isolated.

Of the 148 overdoses the task force investigated in 2021, 124 victims were Native.

“I’m sick of telling people that their kids are dead,” Kleszyk said.

Amid all this death and dying, one of the most urgent questions White Earth and other Native American communities are facing is how to spare the next generations from starting the cycle anew.

The national average for health care spending is just over $11,000 per person, but tribal health systems receive about a third of that and urban Indian groups even less, according to the National Council of Urban Indian Health. COVID-19 added another blow to this already-stressed system.

In the years before the pandemic, the White Earth tribe married western medical interventions with the traditional healing practices that helped their people survive as the government tried to erase them. They trained thousands how to use the overdose-reversal medication naloxone and estimate that’s saved 1,000 lives, Gardner said. They saved just as many through the millennia of inherited wisdom: drum circles, tobacco ceremonies, and the dark, humid honesty of praying in a sweat lodge to balance their bodies, souls and minds.

Their motto is unconditional love, Gardner said. People can recover if they’re given hope and healing, so they don’t give up on anybody, no matter how deep their addiction.

Georgianna Garbow-Warren’s addiction to methamphetamine for years left her homeless—she and her husband lived in abandoned houses, in shelters, eventually under a bridge. She lost custody of her three children. She felt like she was living in circles: She’d use drugs, get her kids taken, clean up, get them back, start the cycle again.

Garbow-Warren had a fourth child in 2019, a son born prematurely at 4 pounds, 7 ounces. They took him straight from the hospital.

She kept using meth: “I wanted to take all that pain away,” she said.

Then she couldn’t breathe, went back to the hospital and was diagnosed with congestive heart failure from the damage meth had done. She was in and out of emergency rooms. One day she was lying in bed there and thought: “Oh God, do I really hate myself this much?”

She turned herself into the police on an outstanding warrant and told them she wanted treatment. It was February

In Minnesota, as across the country, drug dealers now cut nearly every drug on the street with fentanyl, a cheap and deadly synthetic opioid so potent the equivalent of a sugar packet can make 40 doses. It’s a game of Russian roulette.

Joe Kleszyk, the commander of the region’s drug task force 2020, just as the pandemic began brutalizing so many battling addiction.

“This year there’s been the most funerals I’ve been to in my whole life,” she said. Her sister was hospitalized in March with liver and kidney infections from drinking and drug use.

She couldn’t see when Garbow-Warren visited her. The doctors said she could hear them. They played her favorite song by Sir Mix-A-Lot and she wiggled like she was trying to dance. She died a couple days later.

“I’ll never get the image out of my head,” she said. One of her sisters is now in treatment, a brother still uses, and she’s afraid of getting a phone call that he’s dead.

Her husband found recovery, too. They got an apartment, a dog, a car, and slowly regained custody of their baby, who has cerebral palsy. He can’t crawl, so he scoots around on his back.

“I blamed myself. I felt a lot of guilt and shame, a lot of pain,” she said, about her son’s medical difficulties. Then a doctor told her there was no way to know if it was from her drug use or something else.

She doesn’t know about her older children. Her son turned 18 this year, the others are 17 and 10. She sometimes imagines tracking them down, but then wonders if they’re better off without her.

“I live with that every day,” she said, “wondering if they’re OK.”

On the morning of January 11, it was quiet in Rachel Taylor’s house and her son’s bedroom door was closed.

“Are you awake?” Taylor texted him at 9:21 a.m.

She never wanted to seem overbearing, and she knew it made him happy to think she trusted him. So she vacuumed the living room just outside his bedroom and hoped the commotion would wake him.

Eventually, she opened his door. At first she thought it must be a dream, like she was seeing from outside herself that his skin was purple.

She dialed 911, and the operator said to check his vitals. He was ice cold. She dropped the phone and screamed. “Come back, my baby, come back.”

When he was born, the nurse put him on her chest, and he’d looked at her with such intensity. His eyes were always like that, like a cat’s, she thinks.

He loved animals. In stacks of photo albums, he’s often holding some little creature. She kept everything he ever made her—birthday cards, childhood pottery. “You’re the best mom in the world,” he’d write, and she loved it because she’d always felt like a bad one.

She knew the hell her son was living because she had lived it, too.

In December 2020, he punched holes in the walls until his fists bled and screamed he wanted to die. She called police, and when officers arrived she stepped in front of her bloody, hysterical son. “Please don’t shoot him,” she pleaded, “this isn’t him.”

They took him to a hospital, but he broke a camera, and the hospital kicked him out.

A month later, she watched as they covered him in blue plastic, and begged them to let her kiss his forehead.

The toxicology report said that he’d died of a combination of alprazolam, the drug in Xanax, and fentanyl.

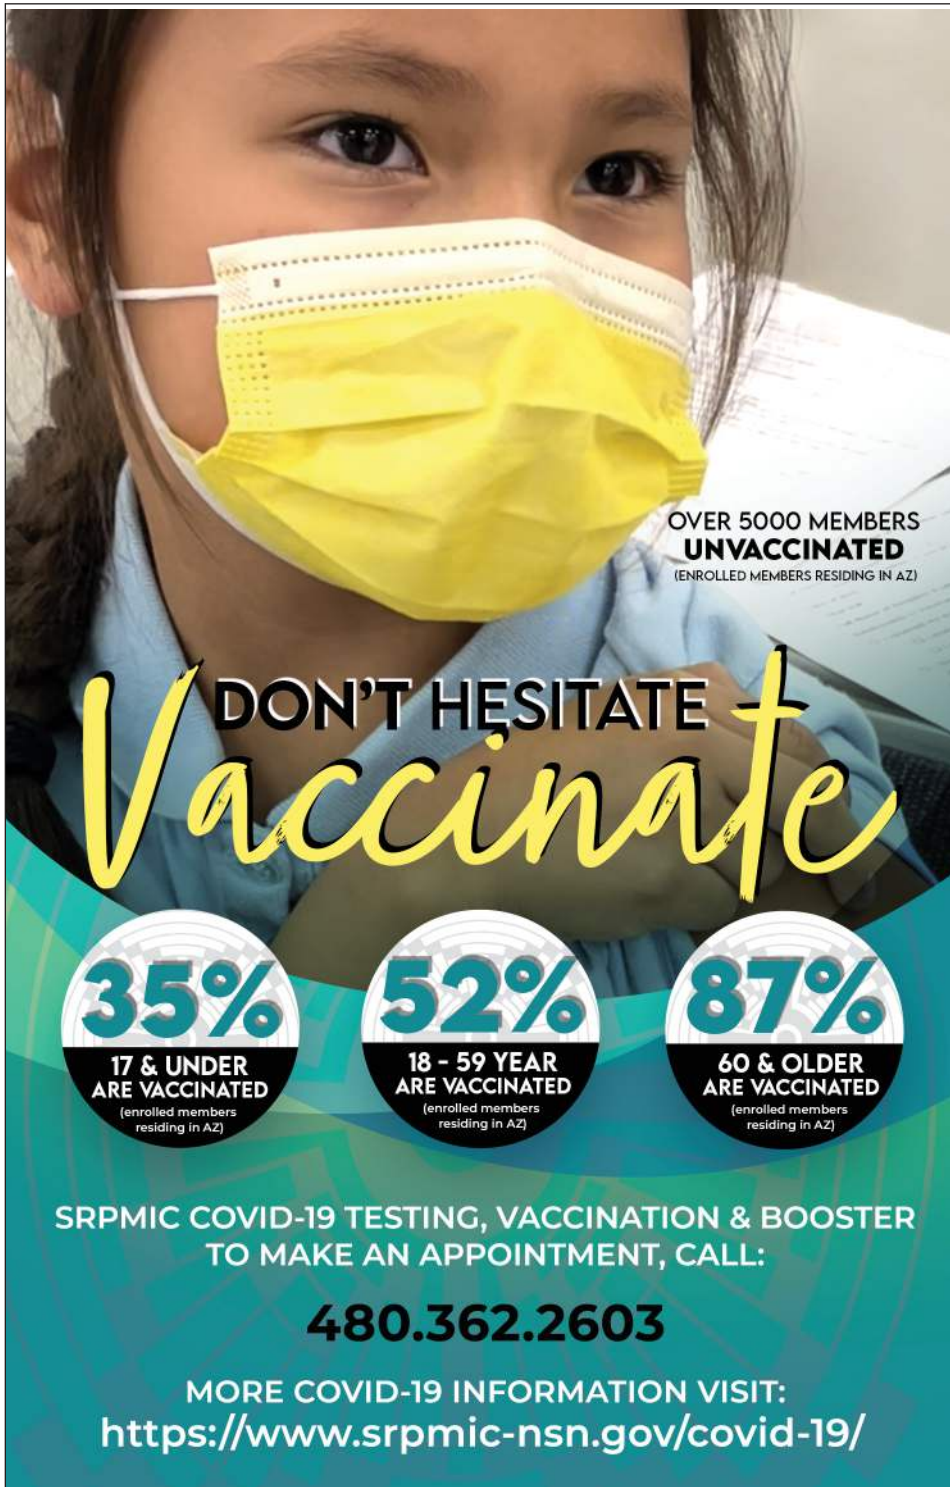

For a time, she didn’t want to live.

Then the medicine man took her to a sweat lodge on the reservation. When she came out, the chatter of two cranes on the wind sounded like a crow—a sign from her son. Now she feeds the crows so they’ll keep coming to the yard.

She still smells him, she said. She swears she hears his particular way of knocking on the door.

The anniversary of his death was January 11, and it is customary in her culture to return the dead to nature after a year of grieving.

“The medicine man says I have to let him go back to the earth,” she said just before the anniversary. “But I don’t think I’m going to be able to do that. He left me too soon.”

Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community
McDowell Road & Country Club Drive

This new Health Center reflects who we are as a people. It is designed inside and out for physical, mental, emotional, and spiritual healing.

The building is oriented so patients and their families see views of Red Mountain, South Mountain, Papago Buttes and Camelback Mountain, four peaks that provide a sense of comfort and healing. The Health Center honors the culture of the Pima and Maricopa and the importance of the river, earth, and natural surroundings. The plaza and traditional garden provide outdoor areas for gathering and contemplation. It is our Council's hope that the River People Health Center will be a place of healing and wellness for Native people.

As the old saying goes: It's a dirty job, but somebody has to do it. And that's what the Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community's Public Works Sanitation solid waste operators are here for. The department tackles three different types of trash pickup in the Community: bulk, commercial and residential.

With bulk trash pickup, solid waste operators service four zones in the Community. Each homeowner gets one bulk trash service per month, and at a resident's request, a 15-yard (sometimes larger) "roll-off" box is dropped off Monday through Friday or Friday through Monday at the home for residents to load by hand.

What constitutes bulk trash is anything that doesn't fit in a normal 95-gallon can, such as large items, tree trimmings and brush, or boxes.

Then solid waste operators and general laborers will come to pick up the trash that is placed at the side of the road. A Kubota R-430 tractor is used to load the trash into the rear load truck to be driven away to the Salt River Landfill.

General laborer Sam King said that it's an easy job for him. "Before I was doing this, I was working day labor. A lot of times, as a day laborer, I worked at the landfill to pick up trash," said King. "So, the transition has been easy and I enjoy doing it." Commercial trash is picked up at businesses Monday through Saturday, including holidays.

Equipment Operator II Randy Fresquez was picking up commercial trash at Casino Arizona at Talking Stick Resort when I spoke to him. "Right now, I'm operating a roll-off truck," said Fresquez. "What we do is service and haul trash containers ranging from 20 yards to 40 yards long. I'm servicing the green waste containers, switching them out and leaving an empty one."

A solid waste operator I and II operate side loaders, which are vehicles that can pick up residential trash using a mechanical arm to grab the trash and recycling bins. In order to be a solid waste operator, Solid Waste Supervisor Wilkin Ray said that you have to get at least a class B commercial driver's license, as the trucks are difficult to maneuver and have many moving parts.

Solid waste operators work three days a week in nine-hour shifts, from 6 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. That's how long it takes to pick up trash along the route and transport it to the landfill. On Tuesdays and Fridays operators pick up residential trash, and on Thursdays they pick up recycling. Tablets running the geo-coded program "Encore" take drivers to the location of each stop in the Community, which makes it easier to follow a route that has many twists, turns, back roads and dirt roads. Currently, six employees who are Community members work in the Solid Waste division. For additional information regarding solid waste, go to the Solid Waste webpage at <https://www.srpmic-nsn.gov/government/public-works/solid-waste/> See bulk trash pick-up schedule on page 19.

How You Can Make Things Easier for Solid Waste Operators

- Do not overload trash containers, because it makes them too heavy to be lifted by the trucks.
- Community members should have their containers placed out before 6 a.m. on the day of pickup. The department says it receives many calls/complaints stating that customers had their containers out, but when the drivers passed by, the customers did not have their containers out.
- Place trash containers 3 feet apart from each other so the arm of the truck can pick up the container.
- All trash must be bagged.

What’s New From the SRPMIC Veterans Representative Office

BY CHRIS PICCIUOLO
O’odham Action News
chris.picciuolo@srpmic-nsn.gov

The Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community Veterans Representative Office started the new year off with a brand-new January issue of its monthly SRPMIC Veterans Newsletter, which provides some essential information for Community veterans.

In the January issue, SRPMIC Veterans Representative Amanda White talks about what’s in store for 2022 after two long years of the COVID-19 pandemic.

“The New Year presents an opportunity for positive outcomes and new beginnings for us all, especially for the SRPMIC Veterans Program,” said White. “It’s hard to tell if and when there will be an ‘end’ date to COVID, but there’s never a wrong time to start planning honoring events for our veterans with positivity.”

Within the newsletter, the office gives advice on obtaining copies of a veteran’s DD-214 form (Report of Separation). All requests to obtain a copy of the form from discharges that took place less than 62 years ago must be signed and dated by the veteran or next of kin.

If you are the next of kin of a deceased veteran, you must provide proof of death of the veteran with a death certificate, a letter from a funeral home or a published obituary.

To apply online for the form, visit www.vetreca.org. You can also make an appointment with the Veterans Representative Office by emailing VeteranServices@SRPMIC-nsn.gov or by calling the Veterans Assistance Line at (480) 362-7884.

The newsletter also mentions that the Department of Veterans Affairs furnishes, upon request and at no charge to the applicant, a government headstone or marker for the unmarked grave of any eligible deceased veteran in any of the three designated cemeteries in the Community.

If a veteran or a family member of a veteran wishes to receive this benefit, visit the National Cemetery Administration’s website at www.va.gov/vaforms/va/pdf/va40-1330.pdf to download the VA Form 40-1330.

Send the completed application, along with proof of the DD-214 form, via fax to 1-800-455-7143 or by mail to:

10 THINGS YOU CAN DO TO MANAGE YOUR COVID-19 SYMPTOMS AT HOME | COVID-19 |

If you have possible or confirmed COVID-19

1. Stay home except to get medical care.

2. Monitor your symptoms carefully. If your symptoms get worse, call your healthcare provider immediately.

3. Get rest and stay hydrated.

4. If you have a medical appointment, call the healthcare provider ahead of time and tell them that you have or may have COVID-19.

5. For medical emergencies, call 911 and notify the dispatch personnel that you have or may have COVID-19.

6. Cover your cough and sneezes with a tissue or use the inside of your elbow.

7. Wash your hands often with soap and water for at least 20 seconds or clean your hands with an alcohol-based hand sanitizer that contains at least 60% alcohol.

8. As much as possible, stay in a specific room and away from other people in your home. Also, you should use a separate bathroom, if available. If you need to be around other people in or outside of the home, wear a mask.

9. Avoid sharing personal items with other people in your household, like dishes, towels, and bedding.

10. Clean all surfaces that are touched often, like counters, tabletops, and doorknobs. Use household cleaning sprays or wipes according to the label instructions.

Why Are So Many Vaccinated People Getting COVID-19 Lately?

BY LAURA UNGAR
AP Science Writer

Why are so many vaccinated people getting COVID-19 lately?

A couple of factors are at play, starting with the emergence of the highly contagious omicron variant. Omicron is more likely to infect people, even if it doesn’t make them very sick, and its surge coincided with the holiday travel season in many places.

People might mistakenly think the COVID-19 vaccines will completely block infection, but the shots are mainly designed to prevent severe illness, says Louis Mansky, a virus researcher at the University of Minnesota.

And the vaccines are still doing their job on that front, particularly for people who’ve gotten boosters.

Two doses of the Pfizer-BioNTech or Moderna vaccines or one dose of the Johnson & Johnson vaccine still offer strong protection against serious illness from omicron. While those initial doses aren’t very good at blocking omicron infection, boosters — particularly with the Pfizer and Moderna vaccines — rev up levels of the antibodies to help fend off infection.

Omicron appears to replicate much more efficiently than previous variants. And if infected people have high virus loads, there’s a greater likelihood they’ll pass it on to others, especially the unvaccinated. Vaccinated people who get the virus are more likely to have mild symptoms, if any, since the shots trigger multiple defenses in your immune system, making it much more difficult for omicron to slip past them all.

Advice for staying safe hasn’t changed. Doctors say to wear masks indoors, avoid crowds and get vaccinated and boosted. Even though the shots won’t always keep you from catching the virus, they’ll make it much more likely you stay alive and out of the hospital.

Community Youth Shares His Marching Band Experience

BY TASHA SILVERHORN
O'odham Action News
tasha.silverhorn2@srpmic-nsn.gov

Marching to the beat of his own drum, Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community member James Schaaf is preparing to wrap up his senior year of high school and is looking forward to a new level of marching band experience at Arizona State University in the fall.

Schaaf is a senior at Corona del Sol High School in Tempe, where he is not only a great student academically but has been a member of the school's marching band since his freshman year, sharing his drum set and marching expertise.

"I play snare, drum set and some mallet instruments such as the xylophone and marimba," said Schaaf. "I had a lot of reasons to play, mainly because my dad (Michael Schaaf) is a drummer and my mom (Yvonne Emerson Schaaf) played the piccolo. Her family is big into marching bands and playing music; they were part of the Salt River Indian Marching Band, Quechan Indian Band and the Colorado River Indian Tribes marching bands. But mainly what attracted me to playing was watching a YouTube video of a drum corps playing their warmup sequence. I got really intrigued about how intricate and complex it was. I thought I wanted to do that in the future, so I started small at my middle school and made my way up."

Starting out in the band at Carson Junior High in Mesa, where he played for two years in the seventh and eighth grades, Schaaf went on to high school. Instead of going to Westwood or Mountain View, he chose to attend a school with an outstanding percussion band program. He decided to go to Corona del Sol, where he developed his skills through good instruction and feedback from his teachers.

"I felt that that is where I would develop quicker, so I chose to go to that school," said Schaaf. "I have a couple of teachers who have been good role models to look up to, Roberto Paz and Cole Governo. They are drum teachers in Arizona and have really impacted me on how I wanted to move forward with marching band."

After playing for a little over five years, Schaaf has developed his marching and percussion skills to the point where he has been accepted by Arizona State University's head staff to join the band next fall. Another big accomplishment is being accepted into The Academy Drum and Bugle Corps, which is a world-class junior competitive drum and bugle corps based in Tempe. Schaaf will begin camp with the Academy this month, and in July he will have the opportunity to travel to many states to train and perform, including California and Indiana. Although he has already traveled to California and Utah to play with his high school, he looks forward to visiting new states this summer.

Other than continuing with marching band, at ASU Schaaf plans to get a degree in computer science with an emphasis in software engineering.

"If there are young people interested in doing something like marching band, color guard or dance, it's a great way to meet new friends and make really strong bonds with people you never thought you'd ever meet, as well as develop a skill that most people find really interesting," said Schaaf.

"I would like to thank my parents for supporting me. It has been hard; they would have to drop me off at practice at 4 a.m. I'd also like to thank my teachers Roberto Paz and Cole Governo for giving me really good instruction on how to develop my drumming abilities for the past four years."

In the next few issues, O'odham Action News will be presenting a series of articles about the different aspects of estate planning, wills and probate services provided to members of the Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community.

The SRPMIC Community Development Department (CDD) Membership and Real Property Management (MRPM) Probate Services and Legal Services Office (LSO) has recently hosted presentations at a few Council members' district meetings to spread awareness on the topic.

Because estate planning can be particularly difficult to navigate in Native American communities, articles will be divided into separate sections that will hopefully make it easier for Community members to absorb the information.

The sections will be as follows: general information and an overview of the American Indian Probate Reform Act (AIPRA), wills and services that LSO offers, information about the personal property probate process, and information about the trust asset probate process.

This topic is especially important for Community members who are either dealing with the loss of a loved one or planning ahead to determine the validity of or process of heirs, wills, beneficiaries, claims against an estate, trust and personal property, and more.

In the meantime, for any questions related to the topic, you can reach out to the MRPM division at (480) 362-7600 or the Legal Services Office to schedule an intake call at (480) 362-5670.

Health experts weigh in on symptoms, testing, masking and more!

In a very short time, the highly infectious Omicron COVID-19 variant has upended many aspects of our lives. Both Arizona and Maricopa County are seeing record numbers of infections and testing is in great demand. Luckily, Omicron appears to cause milder illness in many people.

What are the symptoms of Omicron? Are they different?

Lorena Garcia, epidemiologist and professor in the Department of Public Health Sciences noted that Omicron symptoms are about the same, but a person's experience may vary greatly depending on whether they're vaccinated. "In those that are fully vaccinated and boosted, symptoms tend to be mild. In contrast, if an individual is unvaccinated, symptoms can be quite severe, resulting in hospitalization or even death," Garcia said. She added that there is some evidence that fewer people infected with Omicron are experiencing a loss of taste and smell, a common symptom for previous variants.

"The viral load is much higher in Omicron, which means that someone infected with the Omicron variant is more infectious than someone infected with the Delta variant."—Lorena Garcia, Epidemiologist and Professor in the Department of Public Health Sciences

2 Should I get a rapid antigen test if I have symptoms since they seem like they're not as accurate, or should I look first to get a PCR test?

“If a rapid test is more available or convenient, it’s a good idea to use it,”

Note: If your at-home test does come back positive, please notify the epidemiology team by calling the COVID Hotline at (480) 362-2603. This will help keep an accurate count of Covid-19 cases in the Community.

3 Do I really need to know if I had COVID if it's not causing serious illness?

Yes. Health experts say it's important to know for several reasons:

- If your illness progresses, you'll want to know so you can take advantage of treatments.
- You need to know whether to isolate so you can reduce your chances of infecting others, especially those who are more vulnerable to severe COVID-19.
- You will want to notify your loved ones and contacts so they can monitor themselves for symptoms.

“Omicron is less likely to cause severe disease such as pneumonia that may require hospital admission.”—Dean Blumberg, Chief of pediatric infectious diseases at UC Davis Children’s Hospital.

4 If I'm vaccinated and have no symptoms, but believe I was exposed to someone with COVID-19, should I get tested?

Most likely. “Unfortunately, Omicron is so transmissible that even fully vaccinated and boosted individuals may get infected,” Pollock explained. “If you know you had contact with an infected individual, particularly in a higher-risk situation (such as an enclosed indoor space for a longer period with others who weren’t masked), testing is advised.”

The Centers for Disease Control (CDC) recommends that you get tested 5-7 days after “close contact with a person with suspected or confirmed COVID-19.” The CDC defines close contact as being less than 6 feet away from an infected person for a total of 15 minutes or more over a 24-hour period with or without a mask.

Note: The Community is following the 10-day quarantine rule when testing positive for Covid-19.

Garcia said that in addition to getting tested, you should also quarantine. “Watch for symptoms, distance yourself socially from others in your home and wear a mask. If you test positive, then you should isolate.”

Blumberg noted that if you were in a situation where individuals were outside, masked and distanced, the risk of infection is much lower. “In that case, you could monitor for symptoms and test if any develop.”

5 Can I get reinfected if I've already had COVID-19? What if I'm also vaccinated?

Yes. “You can get reinfected after having COVID-19, although it is less common in the first 90 days after infection,” explained Blumberg. He noted that the vaccines are not 100% effective and breakthrough infections may occur. “However, if you’ve had COVID-19 and are then vaccinated, this decreases your chance of reinfection by about half.”

Vaccine protection wanes over time, Garcia added. “This is something we expected to occur with vaccinated individuals, hence boosters are important, particularly for front line workers and those at higher risk of complications, such as those with diabetes and respiratory illnesses.”

6 How is Omicron presenting in vulnerable populations such as senior citizens and those with multiple underlying conditions?

Most Omicron infections have occurred in relatively young, healthy people. “We still don’t know how dangerous it is in people over 65 or those who are immunocompromised, but there is a concern that they may be at higher risk for severe disease,” Blumberg said. “We urge them to take all available precautions, including vaccination with boosters and masking.”

Omicron is highly transmissible compared to Delta, Garcia noted. “The viral load is much higher in Omicron, which means that someone infected with the Omicron variant is more infectious than someone infected with the Delta variant. Older adults and those with compromised immune systems should take special care," she said.

7 Why should I continue to wear a mask?

Omicron is incredibly infectious. “Everyone should be masking when indoors around anyone not in their household, as well as in crowded areas outdoors where it is impossible to socially distance, like sporting events,” Blumberg said. Several studies have indicated how effective masks can be in protecting yourself and others. “But remember it’s important to cover both the mouth and nose, as COVID-19 can be found in the nose, mouth and throat,” reminded Garcia.

"We all have a personal responsibility to reduce the risk to others, especially the more vulnerable among us," Brad Pollock professor and chair of the Department of Public Health Sciences.

8 How effective are cloth face masks vs. surgical face masks vs. N95 face masks?

“It’s difficult to estimate the protection from cloth masks since they aren’t standardized,” noted Blumberg, “But some studies suggest they are about 50% effective, compared to 60-70% for surgical masks and 95% for N95s.”

Pollock noted that there's strong evidence that properly worn N95 masks are the most protective in terms of blocking transmission. "Cloth masks alone are not very effective against the most transmissible variants like Delta and Omicron. If an N95 mask is not available, a surgical mask covered with a cloth mask can be very effective because the cloth mask acts as a holder to ensure that the surgical mask underneath fits tight," he advised.

PHOENIX (AP) — Hospital officials and public health experts in Arizona are warning against dismissing omicron because of its reputation for being a less severe COVID-19 variant.

“Even if it’s declared as mild, it’s really not. It consumes a number of resources. It complicates other health care,” Dr. Michael White, of Phoenix-based Valleywise Health, said Wednesday during a virtual news conference.

White commented amid reports that some people are deliberately trying to catch the highly contagious variant, believing they will suffer mild illness in exchange for gaining natural immunity.

Early studies show omicron is less likely to cause severe illness than the previous delta variant. But vaccination and a booster still offer strong protection from serious illness, hospitalization and death.

Dr. Joshua LaBaer, executive director of Arizona State University's Biodesign Institute, also said not to be dismissive of it. There's always a chance omicron could trigger serious illness or long-haul COVID-19 symptoms down the road, he said.

there will inevitably be people who will need to go to already taxed hospitals.

“Voluntarily getting infected when the health care system is already stressed and potentially adding to that stress is probably not a great idea either,” LaBaer said. “The whole system is something we have to pay attention to.”

Hospitalizations for COVID-19 have been inching upward in the state since Dec. 31, when they were 2,283. They were up to 2,929 as of Tuesday.

Sonora Quest Laboratories, which conducts the majority of COVID-19 tests in Arizona, broke its single-day record for number of tests processed on Tuesday. The state's largest diagnostic lab went through over 34,000 samples, Chief Operating Officer Sonya Engle said in a statement.

Meanwhile, the state coronavirus dashboard reported a record high of 18,783 new confirmed COVID-19 cases Wednesday. Another six virus-related deaths were also reported. This brings Arizona's pandemic totals to 1,524,363 cases and 24,992 deaths.

TOPICS TO BE COVERED IN THE VIRTUAL COMMUNITY MEETING FOR ENROLLED COMMUNITY MEMBERS ONLY

River People Health Center	The River People Health is set to open next month. General info will be shared on the clinics hours of operation, when and how you can make appt, services that will be provided and information on the Center's connection to Pima Indian Medical Center.
Medical Marijuana:	Tribal Council is currently weighing various options with respect to the use of medical marijuana and the criminal classification (penalty) of the possession or use of recreational marijuana. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Do you support or oppose the legalization of marijuana for medical use? • If the Community were to legalize marijuana for medical use, do you think the Community should develop its own program and standards related to the use of marijuana for medical reasons or should the Community follow the State of Arizona process? • Do you support downgrading (decreasing) the criminal penalty for the possession or use of marijuana to distinguish it from other dangerous drugs such as methamphetamine, heroin, cocaine, fentanyl, etc...?
Special Domestic Violence Criminal Jurisdiction (SDVC) pursuant to the Violence Against Women Act (VAWA):	The Community currently does not have criminal jurisdiction of non-Indian individuals who commit crimes within the Community and that includes domestic violence against a Community Member. When the offender is a non-Indian and the victim is an Indian, the Federal government is the only entity that possesses criminal jurisdiction and the typical domestic violence case rarely gets prosecuted. The VAWA (federal legislation) affirms a Tribe's ability to exercise its inherent sovereignty to prosecute non-Indians for domestic violence under certain circumstances and requirements, including the potential of non-Indians serving as jurors. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Do you support the prosecution by the Community as it relates to non-Indian domestic violence offenders? • Do you support the requirement that non-Indians be permitted to serve on a jury in criminal cases in the Community Court? • Do you think that non-Indians should be permitted to be a juror on all criminal cases, on just domestic violence criminal cases, or only on criminal cases when the defendant is a non-Indian?

Youth Services Quarterly Newsletter Highlights the Department and Programs

Youth Services Quarterly Newsletter Highlights the Department and Programs

BY TASHA SILVERHORN
O'odham Action News
tasha.silverhorn2@srpmic-nsn.gov

The Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community's Youth Services Department launched its first newsletter this month, called the Salt River Youth Times. The two-page newsletter highlights Youth Services programs, culture, staff highlights and community events.

The newsletter is quarterly, and the first issue features department activities from October through December 2021. The first page features three programs, the Hawk, Teen Wolf and Hummingbird groups.

"We asked that the leaders of each group pick a youth who is willing to write a paragraph on the group they participate in. They will answer questions or talk about what they like about their group, their favorite activity, what they learned in their group, etc.," said Youth Services Supervisor Karina Watson.

On the second page, Youth Development Specialist Isaac Lopez provided a blurb on one of the major projects he worked on with the youth, making gourd rattles that are used for singing in the O'odham and Piipaash cultures. He noted that one of his students took great interest in the singing workshop that was taught by Anthony "Thosh" Collins.

The newsletter will always incorporate something on culture, explained

Watson, whether it's a small blurb on activities or a crossword puzzle that features O'odham and Piipaash vocabulary words.

Also on the second page is a short profile of a Youth Services staff member with a photo.

"We are going to be featuring our different staff members. This quarter we chose Youth Development Specialist Nick Armenta, who has worked for the department for 12 years," said Watson.

The newsletter also features a photo collage of Community events that the youth participated in. This first issue covers the Youth Services booth at the Salt River Schools Spooktacular event, the Early Enrichment Program's participation in the SRPMIC Fall Overhaul, and the VAII Bike and Skateboard Raffle.

"We wanted to share what the department is doing to connect with the Community outside of the department, but also feature the department's events," said Watson. "For example, our big event [this quarter] was the VAII Bike and Skateboard Raffle. We'd like to thank all those who helped us make that event a success."

Each quarterly newsletter can be viewed at the Way of Life Facility's Facebook page: www.facebook.com/SRPMIC.WOLF.

An Inside Look at the Career of an SRPD Police Officer

BY CHRIS PICCIUOLO
O'odham Action News
chris.picciuolo@srpmic-nsn.gov

The Salt River Police Department (SRPD) is currently hiring for several open positions within the department. Current positions available are crime scene specialist (two positions), police officer (approximately 40 positions), records clerk (approximately three positions), dispatcher 1 (approximately eight positions) and animal control technician (one position).

Currently, 14 members of the Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community work for the SRPD, seven of them as police officers, and another 15 SRPD employees are members of other Native American tribes.

SRPD Sgt. Joseph Ellis said that having more Community members filling these open positions within the SRPD is important and it would make a difference in the department.

“Community members bring knowledge, experience, history and tradition,” said Ellis. “Those four things, on top of several other things, help educate SRPD employees who are not from the SRP-MIC. It is a good feeling to help others, but it is an even better feeling to help your Community.”

Ellis said that the most important things to think about before applying to become a police officer are having a strong work ethic, getting and staying in shape physically, and having a clean driving record, a clean background and clean social media accounts.

To get an idea of what it's like to work for the SRPD, O'odham Action News talked with SRPD Off. Tammy Lundy, who worked for six years in law enforcement on the outskirts of Chicago, Illinois, as a patrol officer and detective before moving to Arizona. Her first job after moving to the state was working in dispatch at SRPD for a year and a half. She recently became a police officer in the Community.

“[As a police officer], you get to help people pretty much every day, [from] helping someone find their keys that got lost in a store or recovering stolen items, all the way up to saving someone's life,” said Lundy. “That's pretty rewarding. Every single day is different, and you don't have to sit in the office all day. You get to be out there and interact with your Community.”

Lundy said that her typical day begins in a “swing shift,” which is from 1 p.m. to 11 p.m. She will arrive early to get her police vehicle set up with her gear. Police officers usually work four days a week in 10-hour shifts.

After that, Lundy said that she makes sure her uniform looks good and that her flashlight and radio are charged up and ready to take with her.

If the COVID-19 pandemic permits, there will usually be a briefing for the officers in which the sergeant will go over anything that is pertinent, such as following up on previous incidents or things to look out for.

When there aren't calls to respond to, police officers will do other kinds of work, such as finishing up reports or obtaining surveillance footage for an investigation. “There are times where we are also present in court,” said Lundy.

“When driving around the Community, we're usually doing extra checks and watches or responding to calls and helping the Community. I feel like a lot of people don't realize that side of it. We're not just out making traffic stops or getting our lights and sirens on for calls; there is a lot of work in between.”

In regard to how difficult and dangerous the job is, Lundy said that this is definitely the kind of job where you have to expect every day that you could potentially not come home to your family.

“You're there to serve the Community, and that's something that you have to be prepared for every day,” said Lundy. “If you're not thinking that way, then you're not staying safe. You have to be prepared to save a life, whether that's pulling someone out of a canal or having to use force. You have to be prepared every shift to do that without hesitation.”

Steps to Becoming a Police Officer with SRPD

Step 1: Apply. Visit <https://www.srpmic-nsn.gov/government/srpd/employment/> for more information and <https://www.srpmic-nsn.gov/employment/> to apply

Step 2: Pass initial written and physical agility test

Step 3: Pass oral board exam

Step 4: Complete AZ POST (Arizona Peace Officer Standards and Training Board) background packet

Step 5: Pass background check, medical and psychological exams, and polygraph test

Step 6: Attend and graduate from AZ POST Certified Academy, which takes 24 to 26 weeks, depending on which Valley academy you are sent to

Step 7: Enter the SRPD's Field Training Officer (FTO) program, in which you are working out in the field partnered with a veteran officer for a four-phase training program that takes approximately four months

NOTICE OF COMMUNITY HEARING

The Community Council and the Land Management Board have scheduled a Community Hearing. You may or may not be a landowner in this area; however, we are extending this special invitation to all Community Members and landowners with an ownership interest within a ½-mile radius of the project described, as follows:

Community Member Service Area (Northeast Corner of Alma School & Osborn Roads)
DOLU, ROW Easements, and Street Naming

SRPMIC plans to build fourteen (14) new 2 bedroom/2bath housing units for young adults as part of the Social Services transitional program PALS (shown in yellow in the aerial photo below right). These housing units are similar to the existing units located within the Mesquite Trails subdivision. Related to this effort, tribal staff is requesting:

- 1) Approval of a Designation of Land Use (DOLU) for the area shown outlined in red in the aerial photo to the right. The DOLU area is for government buildings with service delivery to eligible Community Members.
- 2) Approval of new road-and-utility easements within the PALS housing area (shown in purple in the aerial photo to the right).
- 3) Approval of adoption of native language street names for the roads within the PALS housing area (shown in purple in the aerial photo to the right). Hu'u Vo:g means "Star Road" and Kui Vo:g means "Mesquite Road" in the O'Odham Language.
- 4) Approval of a "matching utility" easement on Osborn Road (shown in bright green in the aerial photo to the right). The road-rights were granted previously.

Due to COVID-19 precautions, this hearing will be available via pre-recorded video with the options listed below for providing questions or comments.

You may view the pre-recorded video and audio presentation from the Community Hearing starting on January 27, 2022. To view the presentation, please visit: www.srpmic-nsn.gov/1879-phc. Public comments are due by 5PM on February 11, 2022. Public comments can be made a number of ways:

NOTICE OF HEARING ON REQUEST FOR PERMANENT EXCLUSION OF GERVASE FRANCISCO SOTO (DOB XX/XX/78).

January 11, 2022

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that the Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community (SRPMIC) Council pursuant to Article VII, § 1(g) of the SRPMIC Constitution and Section 7-72 through 7-75 of the SRPMIC Code of Ordinances, appointed a committee to conduct an investigation/hearing to determine whether Mr. Gervase Francisco Soto (DOB XX/XX/78) should be permanently excluded from the boundaries of the SRPMIC. IT is alleged that Mr. Soto has engaged in domestic violence and other illegal activity, and therefore his presence is detrimental to the peace, health or morals of the Community.

The Community's Exclusion Committee has scheduled a hearing to consider whether Mr. Soto should be permanently excluded from the SPRMIC at 9:00 a.m. on Tuesday, February 15, 2022 via skype. Upon seeing this notice, Mr. Soto should contact Theresa Rosier, Deputy General Counsel at (480) 362-7446 or Theresa.rosier@srpmic-nsn.gov to receive the skype phone number or log in code.

Mr. Soto may attend the hearing, but if he chooses not to attend, the Exclusion Committee will still hold the hearing and render its decision. Mr. Soto has the right to an advocate or legal counsel at the hearing. In addition, the hearing will be conducted in an informal manner.

Introduction

In 2003, the marketing activities of Phoenix Cement Company and Salt River Sand and Rock were integrated under the Salt River Materials Group (SRMG) commercial trade name to better capitalize on the synergies of related products for the concrete products industry. Headquartered at the Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community's (SRPMIC) Chaparral Business Park near Scottsdale, AZ, SRMG is currently a leading supplier of portland and masonry cements, fly ash and other pozzolans, both normal and light weight aggregates, and natural gypsum products throughout Arizona and the Southwestern United States.

With its strategically located manufacturing facilities, a large fleet of railcars, and an extensive network of rail-served bulk terminals, SRMG continues to deliver quality products and services to the demanding and rapidly-growing construction market. From ready mix concrete to stucco, concrete masonry to paving and soil stabilization, customers of all types throughout the Southwest have experienced the value of SRMG's reliable network, technical expertise, market development and customer service.

Salt River Materials Group is also a leader promoting sustainable products and practices in its industries. With over two decades of experience producing and marketing blended cements and coal combustion products to the concrete industry, SRMG has helped pioneer the use of recycled materials, using its uniquely integrated experience and expertise in the development of new applications.
