A popular summer pastime returned in a big way this year after being postponed following the COVID-19 pandemic. Youth from the Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community laced up their cleats from May 25 to 28 to compete in the 21st Annual Arizona Diamondbacks Inter-Tribal Youth Baseball & Softball Tournament, which was co-hosted by the SRPMIC.

This year, five teams from the Community took to the baseball diamond to compete in the Single A, Double A and Triple A divisions. The Salt River Banditos, AZ Hype and Salt River Bulldogs all entered into Single A division play, while a second AZ Hype team competed in the Double A division. To round out the list of SRPMIC teams, the Desert Dingers played in the Triple A division.

In all, 45 teams from across the Southwest competed in the tournament, representing communities such as the Gila River Indian Community, Navajo Nation, Pascua Yaqui Tribe of Guadalupe, the Hopi Tribe and other tribal nations.

SRPMIC Celebrates 142 Years as a Community

President Rutherford B. Hayes established the Salt River Indian Community as a tribal government through executive order in 1879.

The Community's original land base spanned from present-day Phoenix to the White Mountains. Due to an uproar by non-Native settlers in the area who believed the land base was too large, the initial executive order was amended six months later, and the Community's land base was reduced to roughly 46,627 acres. Over time, the Community obtained additional lands through negotiations and purchases, and today it covers 52,600 acres.

A meal was provided by the Round House Café. Families were treated to a dinner of red chili beef with cemit or skovi cemit, squash and cheese, traditional poshol and a Jell-O cake for dessert.

Vendor booths were set up throughout Two Waters and entertainment included the chicken scratch band Two Rivers, a cumbia contest, and O'odham and Piipaash singing and dancing.

NINE SRFD FIREFIGHTER RECRUITS GRADUATE FROM THE EAST VALLEY REGIONAL ACADEMY

BY TASHA SILVERHORN
O'odham Action News
tasha.silverhorn2@srpmic-nsn.gov

Family members of Recruit Class 22-01 “Super Salty,” a class of nine Salt River Fire Department firefighter recruits and six Superstition Fire/Medical recruits, filled the seats of the Talking Stick Resort Showroom to watch the 15 recruits take the Public Safety Oath of Office on Thursday, June 2.

The program began with a presentation of the colors by the Local 2260 Honor Guard, a group of firefighters from East Valley agencies who performed on pipes and drums.

Logan Garman, a fire recruit graduate for Superstation Fire/Medical, spoke for the recruits. He started his speech with a moment of silence for recently fallen SRFD Firefighter/EMT Brendan Bessee, while sending out thoughts and prayers for the continued recovery of SRFD Firefighter/Paramedic Tyler Packer. Garman reflected on the group’s experiences during their 15-week training and how the 15 quickly became a close bunch. He said they encouraged one another all the way to the Academy graduation. He thanked all of the recruit training officers (RTOs), who came from East Valley Region fire departments: captains Chris Macchiaroli, Ryan Spade, Troy Walter and Dan Elliot and firefighters Aaron Mireles, Angel Hudgens and Ryan Denning.

SRFD Chief Daryl Dash and Superstition Fire/Medical Chief John Whitney shared some words before the recruits took the oath. Chief Dash explained that this was one of the largest classes for the SRFD that sent Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community members and individuals from other Native American tribes to the Academy. Dash congratulated all of them on their dedication to completing their training.

A video made by SRFD Firefighter/Paramedic Lee Grant was screened, showing all of the training that the recruits endured over the last few months.

Mesa Judge Stephen Umpleby administered the Public Safety Oath to swear in the recruits. That was followed by the badge presentation, as the recruits took the stage to receive their helmets and badges. As they made their way offstage, a family member or friend of their choosing came up and pinned on their badge.

Recruit Alicia Randall was the only woman who participated in this Academy class. Previously a Salt River Department of Corrections (DOC) officer, Randall has worked with the Community for 11 years. She chose to pursue a career in the fire department because she wanted to help the Community in a different way.

“I would see Community members come into the DOC, then leave and go on their sobriety or work enforcement, and I just wanted to see them outside of the jail,” said Randall. “I was in corrections and I loved it, but I just wanted to do something different with my time, so I chose to pursue

Although Randall said she was a bit intimidated as the only woman in the group, she attended training every day. “The guys” encouraged and motivated her to get through each day of the training. She looks forward to being part of a tight-knit group of professionals, something that comes with being a firefighter.

“For the women who want to [become firefighters], don’t think you can’t [achieve it], because you can,” said Randall. “After a few weeks in the academy, I thought I couldn’t do it. But my whole perspective was changed. You can do it, you just have to keep pushing yourself, stay determined and find that driver to keep going every day.”

Fire recruits Clifford Lopez and Michael Juan both took part in the firefighter recruitment process. In 2008, Juan made it through the hiring process but was dealing with medical issues that held him back from pursuing this career. Despite passing the written portion of the firefighter test, Lopez was unable to complete the remainder of the examination to complete his training in 2008. For these two, it has been a goal of theirs to finally make it to the SRFD to help serve their community.

“We are there at people’s worst times. It’s cool to be able to help the Community as a firefighter, but the fact that I am [a member of this] Community and I know a lot of people [here], and to be there for those people and have that connection, is going to be the best part,” said Juan.

Lopez received his EMT certification in 2021 and waited to apply for a SRFD position. It has been a long, hard process but well worth it, he explained.

“It’s surreal. I am still processing, but it’s exciting and I can’t wait to move forward in this career and be there for the Community,” said Lopez. “That was one of my reasons to join the fire department, to help the Community and serve our people.”

Federal Indian Boarding School Initiative Released by Interior Department

BY CHRIS PICCIUOLO
O'odham Action News
chris.picciuolo@srpmic-nsn.gov

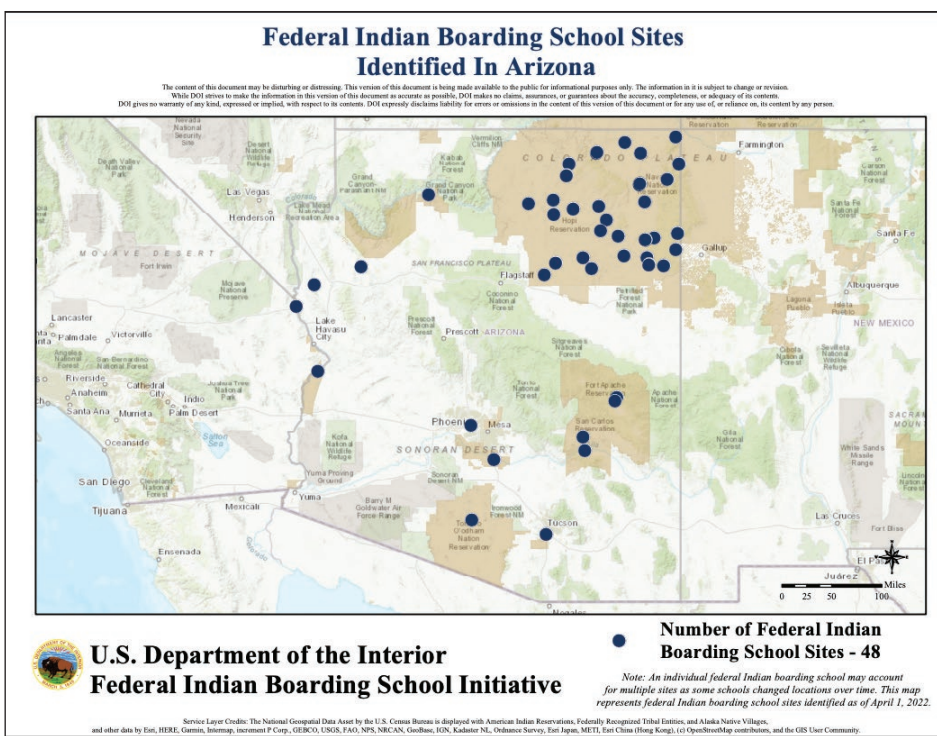

On May 11, the Department of the Interior (DOI) released Volume 1 of the comprehensive report and investigation into the Federal Indian boarding school (FIBS) system called the Federal Indian Boarding School Initiative.

The report is a result of the June 22, 2021, memorandum by Interior Secretary Deb Haaland directing the DOI to investigate and report on, by April 1 of this year, the scope of the boarding school system with a focus on the location of schools and burial sites and identification of children who attended the schools.

For the first time ever, an extensive inventory of federally operated schools was assembled that includes the general location and informational profiles of the schools.

The investigation so far has found that, from 1819 to 1969, the Federal Indian Boarding School system consisted of 408 schools across 37 states. As the investigation continues, the DOI said that it expects the number of identified burial sites to increase from the identified marked or unmarked burial sites at approximately 53 different schools across the system.

“The Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community Tribal Historic Preservation Office is pleased that the Department of the Interior is taking steps to address the many horrific acts that the federal boarding school system inflicted upon Native youth throughout the years,” said Shane Anton, SRPMIC Tribal Historic Preservation Officer. “This includes the death of these individuals that occurred while in their care, and the callous way of treating them by either not fully reporting or falsifying the cause of death. It would appear there are unknown cemeteries of Native youth that their respective communities and families have no knowledge existed or that their loved ones are buried there. Hopefully this investigation and call for a report will help the Native communities and families locate members that haven't been given the opportunity to conduct their traditional mortuary practices and give proper respect to the deceased.”

There were 48 federally operated boarding schools identified in Arizona, which include the Phoenix Indian School in Phoenix and the Pima Boarding School in Sacaton.

“The consequences of federal Indian boarding school policies—including the intergenerational trauma caused by the family separation and cultural eradication inflicted upon generations of children as young as 4 years old—were heartbreaking and undeniable,” said Secretary Haaland in a DOI statement. “We continue to see the evidence of this attempt to forcibly assimilate Indigenous people in the disparities that communities face. It is my priority to not only give voice to the survivors and descendants of federal Indian boarding school policies, but also to address the lasting legacies of these policies so Indigenous peoples can continue to grow and heal.”

According to the DOI statement, the FIBS system “deployed systematic militarized and identity-alteration methodologies in an attempt to assimilate American Indian, Alaska Native, and Native Hawaiian children through education.”

This included renaming Indian children from Indian to English names, cutting the hair of Indian children, discouraging or preventing the use of their religions and cultural practices, and organizing the children into units to perform military drills.

What's Next?

Assistant Secretary of Indian Affairs Bryan Newland provided recommendations based on the report's findings, in which he said the DOI must fully account for and renounce its role in forced assimilation of American Indian, Alaska Native and Native Hawaiian people.

Congress appropriated $7 million in new funds through the Fiscal Year 2022 Consolidated Appropriations Act to authorize action by the DOI to expand its investigation of the FIBS system.

The DOI plans to continue a full investigation, which includes conducting digitization, examination and analysis of records from both the American Indian Records Repository (AIRR) and the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA), which are working together for the first time to preserve Bureau of Indian Affairs records.

The Bureau of Trust Funds Administration (BTFA) identified 39,385 boxes in the AIRR with what the DOI says are “potentially responsive documents (approximately 98.4 million sheets of paper).”

Additional recommendations include identifying surviving FIBS attendees and documenting their experiences; supporting the protection, preservation, reclamation and co-management of sites across the FIBS system where the federal government has jurisdiction over a location, and more.

Indian Health Service Announces $5 Million in Alzheimer's Funding

BY CHRIS PICCIUOLO
O'odham Action News
chris.picciuolo@srpmic-nsn.gov

With its new Alzheimer's Disease Initiative, the Indian Health Service (IHS) is allocating $5 million directly to tribes and tribal organizations for the first time to address the disease within tribal communities.

The U.S. Department of Health & Human Services said that the funding will support tribes, tribal organizations and urban Indian organizations to focus on Alzheimer's awareness, recognition, diagnosis, assessment, management and caregiver support.

According to the Alzheimer's Association, the disease is a type of dementia, a general term for loss of memory and other cognitive abilities serious enough to interfere with daily life. Alzheimer's affects memory, thinking and behavior, and it accounts for 60% to 80% of dementia cases.

“Alzheimer's is an irreversible, progressive brain disease that affects an estimated 5.5 million Americans,” said U.S. Health and Human Services Secretary Xavier Becerra. “This historic funding opportunity for Native communities is much needed and will go a long way toward supporting the goals of the Biden-Harris Administration National Plan to Address Alzheimer's Disease and other forms of dementia.”

Tribes and urban Indian organizations have until July 18 to apply for a grant with an award ceiling of $200,000 to go toward developing models of comprehensive and sustainable dementia care. There are five expected awards for the grant from an estimated total program funding of $1 million.

Chief Behavioral Health Officer John

Godfrey of the Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community Department of Health and Human Services said that the tribe is considering applying.

Currently, SRPMIC HHS does not have a specific program set up for Alzheimer's disease; however, the Community does have a psychologist who can perform testing to detect cognitive deficits, and they also work with the court in regard to adults needing guardianship. The Community also has a psychiatrist who can assist with diagnosing and assessing psychiatric needs.

“In the future, we intend to look more closely at elder care with respect to nursing homes and possibly memory care,” said Godfrey.

A recent study based in 2014 Medicare data estimated the prevalence of Alzheimer's disease and related dementias at 10.5% in American Indians and Alaska Natives. Today, one out of every five American Indian and Alaska Native adults age 45 and older reports experiencing subjective cognitive decline, which the IHS says can be a precursor to dementia.

PREVENTING MOSQUITO BITES

Do bugs bite you when you go outside for a walk?

You most likely are being bitten by mosquitos who see YOU as their next meal. Here are some helpful tips to prevent your next mosquito bite:

Use Insect Repellent

Apply EPA registered insect repellent to any exposed skin when going outdoors. These products should contain DEET, Picaridin, or oil of lemon eucalyptus.

Wear Protective Clothing

Make sure to wear long sleeves, long pants and socks when possible outdoors. Applying a repellent that contains DEET or permethrin to clothing may help reduce contact with mosquitos.

Install and Repair Screens

Practice integrated pest management by making repairs to any torn or missing screens on windows or doors. Reach out to local maintenance for assistance if needed.

Drain Any Standing Water

Eliminate any breeding sites for mosquitos by dumping/draining all standing water. These sites can range in size from a bottle cap to a swimming pool. Old tires holding water is a favorite location for mosquitos to lay their eggs.

Holy Ground Crosses at Oak Flat Vandalized Again

BY CHRIS PICCIUOLO
O'odham Action News
chris.picciuolo@srpmic-nsn.gov

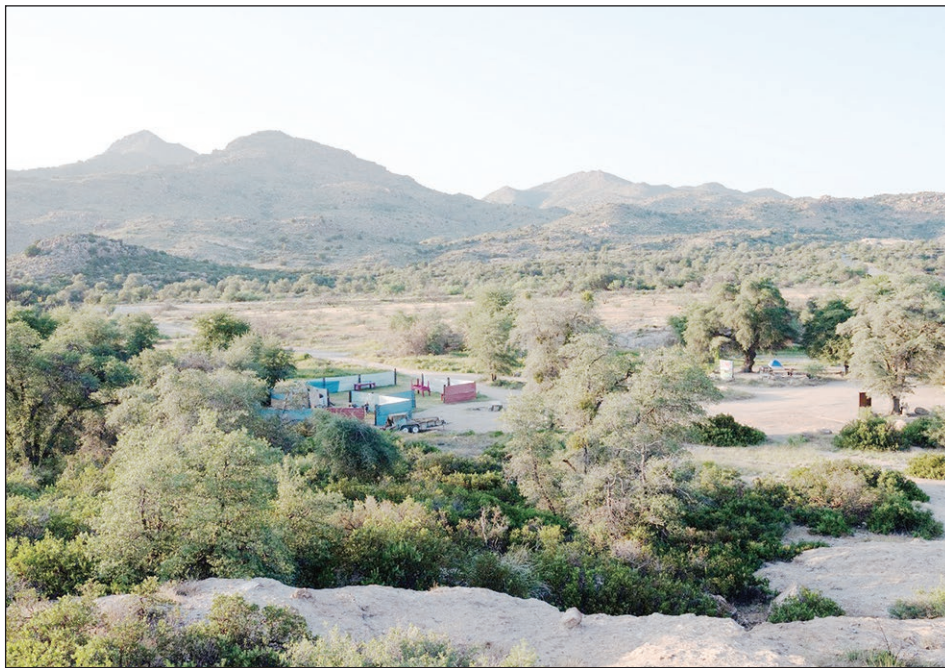

Apache Stronghold, a San Carlos Apache nonprofit organization dedicated to defending holy sites and freedom of religion at Oak Flat, said in a statement that the Holy Ground crosses at the site were vandalized sometime after 9 p.m. on March 22.

Wendsler Nosie Sr., a member of Apache Stronghold and former chairman and council member of the San Carlos Apache Tribe, said that this was the third time recently that the crosses were destroyed.

"As you know, the Holy Ground Ceremony has been a part of us since the beginning and has brought us through so many devastating transitions that our people had to endure. Our religious ways are no different than any other Christian beliefs on how God communicates between heaven and earth," Nosie said in a letter to San Carlos Apache Chairman Terry Rambler and other recipients, which included the mayors of Superior, Globe and Miami.

Nosie continued, "The U.S. Forest Service, particularly the Tonto National Forest, is aware of these hate crimes happening here at Oak Flat. As of today, we have not received any responses to our reporting and their investigation of these hate crimes. Yet, they push consultation for the benefit of Resolution Copper and not for Indigenous people, the environment and not to even consider the sustainability for the future of all mankind."

As previously mentioned in the June 3, 2021, issue of O'odham Action News, in the 2015 National Defense Authorization Act, a provision mandated that the federal government transfer 2,422 acres of Tonto National Forest land to Resolution Copper, a joint venture owned by Rio Tinto Mining Company and BHP Billiton, to mine the region. The Oak Flat area is considered sacred by the Apache and other Arizona tribes.

What's Next for Oak Flat?

On May 12, U.S. Congresswoman Debbie Lesko (AZ-08) introduced H.R. 7722, the Unleashing American Resources Act, which, if passed, would require the Secretary of Agriculture to reissue the final Environmental Impact Statement for the Resolution Copper Project and Land Exchange to allow the Arizona facility to immediately begin production at Oak Flat.

"At a time when the United States is in desperate need of critical minerals, we must do all we can to produce these minerals domestically," said Congresswoman Lesko. "Under the Trump Administration, the Resolution Copper project was greenlit to begin production, but then the Biden Administration decided to rescind that approval. We need to get this mine back online and cut the red tape."

Lesko said that, once at full capacity, the mine could provide 25% of all the copper needed in the United States.

"We do not support the destruction of Oak Flat and the contamination of billions of gallons of groundwater," said Nosie in a Facebook post response.

Mining Law Reform

On May 12, the Natural Resources

Committee's (NRC) Subcommittee on Energy and Mineral Resources held a hybrid legislative hearing titled "Reforming the Mining Law of 1872" and considered NRC Chair Congressman Raul M. Grijalva's (AZ-03) legislation H.R. 7580, the Clean Energy Minerals Reform Act of 2022.

"The Mining Law of 1872 did not account for the legacy of environmental degradation that mining would have in its surrounding communities, nor did it provide for royalties or a comprehensive system to evaluate, permit, and develop and reclaim mines to ensure sustainable mining on public lands," said Steven H. Feldgus, Ph.D., Department of the Interior Deputy Assistant Secretary for Land and Minerals Management.

H.R. 7580 requires consultation prior to undertaking any mineral activities that may have a substantial direct impact on the lands or interests of Indian tribes, and it establishes an environmental standard for mining activities to ensure that mining activities prevent undue degradation of public lands and resources.

A Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community member's ambitions for college begin as the door opens to life beyond high school. Elyse Silversmith, fresh from graduating from Saguaro High School (SHS), is ready to move forward with her educational journey.

"We are just very proud of her. It's been a busy time for her, and I am happy that we get to see her accomplish [this] much," said Tammy Silversmith, Elyse's mother.

Silversmith said that her daughter has been very involved with activities at school, especially with cheer. In her junior and senior years, Elyse tried out for cheer; she made the JV team and also was picked to be on the varsity team. "What got me into cheerleading is that I wanted to meet new people and try something new," said Elyse.

Silversmith said of her daughter, "I'm just proud of her and everything she is doing. The Saguaro cheerleading squad made it to the AIA (Arizona Interscholastic Association) state championships and won."

Silversmith said her daughter has always been interested in dance and was involved with a local dance company where she would perform with other members. Elyse said, "I originally did dance, since freshman year ... so I was in dance club my freshman and sophomore years, and then in my junior year I decided to cheer."

"[She] was thinking of going into the veterinary field, but now she's more into caring for people, especially in the area of women's health," said Silversmith. In recalling the growth of her daughter, she said, "At times, it could be very stressful. She had practices before she could drive, and [we would take her to] events ... such as camps. It was good for her ... but I did what I could to help her, because it was good for both of us."

Now that high school is behind her, Elyse said it is time to turn her attention to college to explore her interests. "During my years of dance, we actually studied the body types, like the human anatomy," said Elyse.

She said with the pandemic posing an issue and its impact on everyday life, she felt that going nearby to Scottsdale Community College was a better option.

"I plan to go to SCC first and then transfer to NAU (Northern Arizona University) afterwards. I like the environment there, and they have a good community around them (in Flagstaff) and a place where Indigenous peoples like to go," said Elyse.

Although the future is open to many learning opportunities, Elyse wants to focus on a subject around women's health/health science. She attributes her interest in attending college to the teachers at SHS, who introduced the students to different career fields.

CRS Adaptive Programs Kick Off Summer with 'Passport to Paradise'

O'odham Action News

On June 3, the Adaptive Programs section of the Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community Recreational Services (CRS) kicked off the summer with a Passport to Paradise event. Youth from the Super Kids Club and Teen Squad enjoyed an evening of activities, entertainment, food and more at the Social Suite Courtyard.

The event also was held to inform parents and program participants about the relocation of Adaptive Programs from the CRS Social Division to the Education Program, a new division of the CRS. In addition, they discussed upcoming events, such as the Summer Family Campout, which will be held June 15-18 and feature activities such as pizza and paint, movie night, game night and a pool party.

Passport to Paradise provided fun games, activities and entertainment to the youth with special needs and their families. Activities included making mason jar aquariums; limbo, fire and hula dancing by the Pualoto Polynesian Show; and luau-style foods.

"Every month we offer two programs. For Super Kids they do different recreational stuff, such as a creative activity. We do holiday parties quarterly and family nights once a month," said Adaptive Recreation Coordinator Tammy Thomas.

Another highlight of Adaptive Programs is the adaptive swim. The Way of Life Facility (WOLF) is the most accessibility-friendly location in the Community, and they are trying to utilize that for Community members of all

SRPMIC 'Not One More' Symposium: Taking a Stand on Drug Use in Our Community

BY TASHA SILVERHORN
O'odham Action News
tasha.silverhorn2@srpmic-nsn.gov

The Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community held the "Not One More" Symposium on June 2, 3 and 4 at the Talking Stick Resort to take a stand against drug use in the Community. The symposium featured experts and guest speakers who focused on three steps to process combating addiction: identifying the problem, programs and services to overcome substance abuse issues, and what is going to happen in the future.

Day 1 was called "The Path We Walk," and it explored the effects of drugs in the Community, what the addiction process looks like, and where we are today.

Day 2 was called "The Path to Recovery," and the topics focused on various services that are available within the Community.

Finally, Day 3 was called "The Path Forward," looking into the future of substance abuse in the Community and getting feedback about the government action taken so far for combating this surge in the Community.

Day 1 featured a presentation by SRPD Chief Karl Auerbach and Commander Michaela Sample on the most common drugs and narcotics and their effects. They discussed all drugs but focused on the increasing use of fentanyl and opioids. In 2021, 38 people overdosed in the Community; 20 of them were Community members. Seven people died from their drug overdoses, five of whom were Community members.

Sample explained that the potency of illegal drugs is increasing due to their purity, making them even more dangerous. She also educated participants to be on the lookout for cellphone emojis that represent drug slang.

Salt River Fire Department Chief Daryl Dash screened a video of SRFD firefighters reviving an overdose patient during a training exercise. Dash explained that this is something they are seeing more often.

"We are starting to see these trends where drugs are getting more prevalent and stronger within the Community," said Dash. "It's tough; some of our members of the fire department are Community members, and they have had to work on their own family members in these types of situations. We had a 78-year-old patient overdose on fentanyl, and the youngest was a 12-year-old who overdosed on fentanyl."

Family Advocacy Center Director Carol Colmenero talked about the historical trauma that is leading to addiction and other unhealthy habits among American Indian tribes.

SRPMIC Health and Human Services Chief Behavioral Health Officer John Godfrey and Chief Public Health Officer Nancy Mangieri talked about the health issues caused by drugs and alcohol. HHS Residential Treatment Manager Frank Saverino gave a presentation on the disease of addiction, explaining what addiction is, its causes, and who is vulnerable to addiction. Family Advocacy Center Director Carol Colmenero talked about the historical trauma that is leading to addiction and other unhealthy habits among American Indian tribes. She focused on the boarding school experiences that Native children and their families faced as a cause of the historical trauma that still lingers within Native people today.

Day 2 The Path to Recovery

BY CHRIS PICCIUOLO
O'odham Action News

Day 2 of the "Not One More: Taking a Stand on Drug Use in Our Community" symposium focused on "The Path to Recovery" and what resources are available to Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community members seeking help with addiction.

During the first half of the day, presenters discussed a variety of issues such as the intersection of criminal prosecution and behavioral health and outpatient treatment services provided by SRPMIC Behavioral Health Services (BHS).

O'odham Action News was present for part of the second half of the day, which included a presentation by Dr. Nate Velez and Dr. Paul Flatley called "Withdrawal Management, Residential and Partial Hospitalization Program, and Medication-Assisted Treatment: An Overview."

The presentation focused on the six dimensions of multidimensional assessment: acute intoxication and/or withdrawal potential; biomedical conditions and complications; emotional, behavioral or cognitive conditions and complications; readiness to change; relapse, continued use or continued problem potential; and recovery/living environment.

Also discussed were the levels of care at Journey to Recovery and BHS, which include withdrawal management, intensive outpatient treatment, partial hospitalization, residential treatment and sober living.

Dr. Flatley discussed the medication-assisted treatment options for patients and went into detail about opioid use disorder and the types of medication used for different symptoms, and while discussing opioid use, he said that Fentanyl has a 98% chance of relapse

After that presentation, Dr. Kevin Jordan came to the podium to talk about crisis intervention services, which are available to the Community 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, 365 days a year. The Crisis Line at (480) 850-9230 responds to calls concerning suicidal ideation, substance abuse, depression, anxiety, psychosis, domestic violence, death notifications and traumatic events.

Dr. Jordan also discussed other services that BHS provides, such as psychological testing and assessment to determine IQ and basic achievement functions, and neuropsychological testing to determine current cognitive functions and cognitive changes associated with a neurological condition.

Rounding out the day was a presentation by Vince Barraza, director of the SRPMIC Defense Advocate Office, who introduced the wellness court concept.

A wellness court is a type of treatment or drug court that integrates substance abuse treatment with the criminal justice system. This court model provides substance-abusing offenders a team approach that is judicially supervised treatment and offers transitional and rehabilitation services.

According to Barraza, more than 100 tribal governments have implemented some form of a wellness court.

Day 3 Community Member Shares Story of Substance Abuse Recovery at Drug Symposium

CHRISTOPHER LOMAHQUAHU
O'odham Action News
Christopher.Lomahquahu@srpmic-nsn.gov

A Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community member is utilizing her experience with recovering from addiction to help others in need. During the "Not One More: Taking a Stand on Drug Use in Our Community," symposium, Kim Enos shared her path to recovery during a presentation at the Talking Stick Resort on June 4.

It was the final day of the symposium, which began on June 2 and provided a wealth of information on substance abuse and recovery. Enos provided a presentation on "Building Grassroots Programs," in which she highlighted the program called Wellbriety: Walking the Red Road, which combines Native traditions, beliefs and spiritual practices with the 12 steps to sobriety to help Native Americans recover from addiction. The program draws from Indigenous spirituality and healing as part of the path to recovery.

Enos realized she needed to confront her substance abuse when it led her to prison in December 2017.

"I knew I was in a dire situation when I was sent away to prison," said Enos. "I knew when I got there that 'I really did it this time.' With Christmas coming up and me being in prison, it was hard on me, because I lost my dad and my 12-year-old son," said Enos.

Community member Kim Enos gave a presentation on Wellbriety: Walking the Red Road program, during day three of the Not One More drug symposium on June 4.

Being sent to prison during the holidays and losing those close to her were not the only woes Enos had to deal with. She was trying to accept that she had an addiction and needed to change. "I was hurting my family, hurting my community—I was hurting everybody that I came into contact with," said Enos.

With those thoughts front and center, Enos understood more and more about her predicament and the changes she needed to make to get herself out of the routine of "running and gunning" with substance abuse.

She was offered an opportunity to attend the Crossroads treatment center in Phoenix to get help for her addiction in the spring of 2018. "I wasn't ready to surrender myself to getting rid of the problem, because I knew I [had gone through] detox many times and wasn't able to detox each time," said Enos. She said it was the same situation, having someone tell her to get treated, which made her apprehensive about going to Crossroads.

But Enos said this experience was different from the other times, because she had "sisters," her bunk mates, who supported her while in recovery. "I was very fortunate that I was housed with bunk mates that took me under their wing and let me know it was going to be okay. ... I was filled with guilt, but they comforted me to know that I was making the right decision," said Enos.

Fast-forward to the present day, and Enos is now paying it forward through the same type of resources that got her away from substance abuse. "The Red Road to Wellbriety program was an invitation to take that journey to heal," said Enos.

She added that the program promotes a healthy and sober lifestyle and focuses on the physical, emotional, mental and spiritual aspects of the individual. "Before I started the Wellbriety program, I was just a hollow person walking around. There was no emotion, there was nothing ... I was just there," she said.

"When I got to Wellbriety, they said we are connected and [helped us] to bring back those lost values and follow the 12 steps in the Native way, through our traditions and our values," said Enos. She said knowing what the program can do is one part of the path to healing, which also included what to do to break the pattern of returning to harmful situations back home.

"During the program I was told that healthy seeds cannot grow in diseased soil ... so we can get sober, but we still have to go home and safeguard ourselves from addiction. We need to create healthy and healing environments for ourselves, and that is something I am trying to do today," said Enos.

Enos regularly hosts healing circles and talking circles in the Community; she hosts one outside the Round House Café every Sunday morning at 6 a.m.

"I invite everyone to come out and share their story, and if they are in need of support ... [we] come out and share our prayers, songs and dances as a way of bringing back that traditional healing," said Enos.

Her advice for those suffering from substance abuse and addiction? "Don't limit yourself because you made a few bad choices. It takes good moral character, because we have that in each and every one of us."

tasha.silverhorn2@sprmic-nsn.gov

On Thursday, July 7, a new art exhibit will be opening at the Pueblo Grande Museum in Phoenix called When Rez Dogs Howl, featuring artwork by O'odham artist Thomas "Breeze" Marcus. The exhibit is a body of work exploring the duality of the past teachings of O'odham. It also gives a contemporary perspective on what Rez life is like today, the transformation the O'odham have made, what they have held onto, and how they have adapted through pain and triumph of everyday life.

"When you hear dogs howl on the (Salt River) Rez, it's usually when sirens are going by. Sometimes, perhaps it's a pack of coyotes off in the distance, or maybe dogs are just howling at the moon," said Marcus in an Instagram post. "[In] the old days, [the] Huhugam had dogs who alerted, hunted, made companions and so much more. Dogs were even given proper burials and honored at times. Where we've come from ancestrally, we always carry stories about our surrounding environment and how the animals indigenous to the area show us and teach us things."

Marcus is known for exploring issues relating to contemporary Native America in his work, which includes large-scale painted murals and public art as well as studio painting.

Salt River Co-Hosts Inter-Tribal Baseball Tournament

A pitcher on the Salt River Banditos, works through innings, during a matchup against the Windtalkers on the first day of Single A division play on May 25.

An AZ Hype batter knocks out a double against the Windtalkers during their Championship matchup on May 27.

To lead off the tournament, the Salt River Banditos looked to have some fun and see where their standings would be heading into the final games of the week. With the SRPMIC again hosting the tournament, Community families came together, eager to see their children “Play ball!”

In their first matchup, the Desert Dingers showed promise behind solid pitching and productive at-bats, but they were only able to collect one win throughout the tournament. In their winning game, the team’s pitcher showed adversity under pressure to get out of the inning when players were in scoring position. At the end of their division play, the Desert Dingers settled for a record of 1 win and 2 losses.

For the Double A division AZ Hype team, they found their stride early on and never looked back. AZ Hype would allow a combined total of only five runs throughout the tournament, due in part to a solid defense.

AZ Hype rode their success into the Saturday games on May 28, playing in the semifinals and the championship game against the Expos squad and the Windtalkers team, respectively. During their early outing, AZ Hype dominated the matchup, posting 11 runs on the board in a decisive victory against the Expos.

With the victory in hand, AZ Hype punched their way into the Double A championship game the very same evening at Salt River Fields at Talking Stick. Heading into the final game, AZ Hype and the Windtalkers had enjoyed similar outings, scoring double-digit runs followed up with limiting their opponents’ runs.

The championship game would see the two teams vying for the title, as they brought out similar defensive plays to limit the runs on both sides. It wasn’t until midway through the game that the Windtalkers’ pitching started to waver, and AZ Hype got the bats going to capitalize on the moment.

As the Windtalkers’ pitching struggled through the fifth and sixth innings, AZ Hype brought in a few more runs to put the game out of reach. At times the pitching for AZ

Hype would get interesting, allowing some Windtalkers batters on base and in position to score, but with determination, the home team was able to shut down those efforts and secure the Double A division championship.

AZ Hype coach Raul Ruvalcaba, a member of the Gila River Indian Community, said the team consisted of a tight knit group of youths, who have played together over the years. “I knew their strengths and weaknesses as a team, so we tried to improve on those things for [this] tournament,” said Ruvalcaba.

He added, “We built a strong team and I am proud of them. Although I coach them, it is all about execution, the chemistry and for them to carry out the game plan.” Next up for the team, is a trip to the National Championship Sports Baseball World Series in Albuquerque New Mexico from July 7-10.

Despite some teams falling short of the championship bracket, it was an experience back to normalcy, with youth baseball season back in session.

Congratulations to all the SRPMIC teams and tribal teams for their participation in the annual Inter-Tribal Youth Baseball & Softball Tournament.

Bulldogs, AZ Hype and Desert Dingers

BY CHRIS PICCIUOLO

The Salt River Bulldogs began their Single A Division pool play at the Salt River Recreation ballfield on May 26 against NM Pack-Maroon. The Bulldogs gave their all but were not able to keep up with their opponents, who took the Single A Division by storm all the way to the Championship game on May 28 and ultimately lost to their counterpart NM Pack-Black 19-8.

AZ Hype performed well in the Single A Division pool play, winning their first three games. The team is composed of members of the Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community, the Gila River Indian Community, the Ak-Chin Indian Community and the Pascua Yaqui Tribe in Guadalupe.

“They all played together one way or another in little league, so we got them all together to play in this tournament,” said AZ Hype coach Abelardo Valenzuela.

The AZ Hype squad made it to the semifinals and lost to NM Pack-Black, a team they had previously defeated in pool play. On May 28, AZ Hype won third place in the playoff, 13-0 vs. Rezilient (White Mountain).

The Desert Dingers started their Triple A Division pool play with a shutout vs. the Northern New Mexico Outlaws on May 25. On May 27, the Desert Dingers held onto a lead through most of the game with their impressive play, but Stoneweaver came back to win 7-3.

“For a handful of the players, this is the first time even getting to come out and play, and they really did good. In less than a week, we picked up our outfield and barely had one solid practice with our whole team,” said Desert Dingers head coach Whitney Grey. “From what I saw, we came out and played well and gave our all. We can only progress from here, and we want to play more tournaments throughout the summer and throughout the year.”

Miss Salt River 2021-2022 Sistine Lewis hosted an event on May 21 to bring Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community members together for a cultural gathering. Community members and their relatives from neighboring O'odham tribes gathered for a cu:dk (dance) at the SRPMIC river campground.

At the camp, situated at the base of Red Mountain (Svegi Doag), people gathered to share stories, songs and traditional dances. The event began at sunset and went until midnight. Lewis said that one of her goals as Miss Salt River is to promote culture, which inspired her to organize the cu:dk as one of her sponsored activities.

"They are each responsible to host one platform event for the Community. [This] is something [Sistine] wanted to do, especially coming out of the pandemic. With everything that has gone on in the Community, everything pulled together to host the event this evening," said Martha Ludlow Martinez, chairperson of the Miss Salt River Committee.

Lewis said, "I thank [you] all for taking the time for being here. This event means a lot to me, since during the pandemic it was what I wanted to do." Lewis said that she and the Salt River Royalty Committee went forward in organizing the public event after responsibly gathering in public was deemed safe and after receiving approval from Council.

Also at the event were Miss Salt

River First Attendant Nani Reina and Jr. Miss Salt River Robin Ramirez, who supported Lewis' effort to host a traditional gathering. Throughout the course of the evening, guests were treated to a meal and giveaways.

Lewis said the idea to host the event along the waters of the Salt River and at the base of Red Mountain was a re-imagining of what the Community's forebears would have done long ago. "Ever since I was little, I have grown up dancing in the SRPMIC basket dance groups. I've always loved being around the Community and sharing [our] culture with everybody," said Lewis.

Lewis said her platform was based around promoting culture among the youth, and when the time came to host an event, this is what she had envisioned. "I am thankful for my family, the Salt River Royalty Committee, their families and my Jr. Miss Salt River Committee for their help in making this event possible by providing food and giveaway items," said Lewis.

Lewis said that she made trips to the O'odham tribes to invite them out to the social gathering. Court Pauses Washington Tribe's Evictions For Ousted Members BELLINGHAM, Wash. (AP) — The Washington Supreme Court has temporarily halted evictions for people living in certain households on Nooksack Tribal Land who were contentiously disenrolled from the tribe.

A panel of justices on Tuesday granted an injunction requiring the Nooksack Indian Tribe in northwestern Washington to pause the evictions while the high court determines whether to take up the case, Cascadia Daily News reported.

The households involved in the suit are home to members of a group of more than 300 people who were formally removed from the Nooksack Indian Tribe in 2016 and 2018. They have been facing the threat of eviction for years.

Tribal leaders have said the families known as the "Nooksack 306" were incorrectly enrolled in the 1980s and cannot prove their lineage adequately.

The Nooksack members being threatened with eviction are both Filipino and Native American, or what some call "Indipino." Gabe Galanda, attorney for the families, told KNKX Public Radio his clients are being singled out in part because of that, though he said this kind of mixed identity is common among Native peoples.

Galanda has said nearly all the homes in question were developed as rent-to-own, which means his clients should own their homes or hold equity.

Earlier this year, experts from the United Nations called on the federal government to intervene and prevent the evictions, raising concerns about the welfare of the residents.

The families and Galanda have contested the ousting efforts, gaining attention as leading opponents of tribal disenrollment, an increasing practice that can involve struggles over power and resources, and questions about culture and identity.

In central California, the Picayune Rancheria of Chukchansi Indians voted to expel dozens of members in 2019 from a share of casino profits and other benefits of tribal membership. The Confederated Tribes of the Grand Ronde in Oregon in the past decade also disenrolled tribal members they said no longer satisfied enrollment rules.

Tribal expulsions started in the 1990s along with the establishment of casinos, and have continued as gambling revenues skyrocketed. Critics say the disenrollments have also been used as a way to settle political infighting and family and personal feuds.

In a statement, the Nooksack Indian Tribe said it owns the land and the housing in question, manages the properties, and is the landlord on the leases with all the tenants involved in the case.

"We are confident that once the Court examines the true facts, rather than unfounded claims for the disenrolled tenants, that it will dismiss the case," the statement said.

Native American Youth To Be Tapped For Conservation Projects

BY SUSAN MONTOYA BRYAN
Associated Press

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — U.S. Interior Secretary Deb Haaland on Friday rolled out guidelines for a new youth service program meant to create job opportunities for Native Americans while boosting their cultural connections to nature through conservation projects on tribal and public land.

The Indian Youth Service Corps is the latest addition to the Biden administration's plans for building a 21st century version of the New Deal-era Civilian Conservation Corps. The mission includes everything from clearing brush to reduce wildfire threats and restore forests to preserving historic sites, helping with archaeological research and building trails.

Haaland talked about a childhood spent hiking to the top of high desert mesas, wading through ice-cold streams and learning about the world's interconnectedness from her grandparents while walking through corn fields at Laguna Pueblo in west-central New Mexico.

"I want everyone to have that profound connection to the great outdoors that I was gifted, and we can help more people access nature no matter where they're from or what their background," she said Friday during a call with reporters. "We will help lift up the next generation of stewards for this Earth."

Haaland described Native Americans as original stewards of the land, saying they have learned over many generations how to sustain communities and that it's time for Indigenous youth to have a seat at the table.

The Interior Department is funneling a combined $3.3 million this year to the Bureau of Indian Affairs, the National Park Service and the Bureau of Reclamation to establish the Indian Youth Service Corps.

The U.S. Forest Service is investing up to $5 million as part of its partnership with the corps, and the National Park Foundation is committing $1 million.

Future funding will depend on agency budgets and private philanthropy.

Will Shafroth, president and CEO of the National Park Foundation, said enthusiasm is increasing for programs that give young people paying jobs and training for professions related to public lands and natural resource management.

"It checks a lot of really important boxes for donors, and I think the future is very bright for private funding to support these efforts," he said.

The foundation is funding more than 10 conservation and preservation projects from Maine to New Mexico that involve tribal youth crews. Some of the work is aimed at protecting cultural practices, languages and traditional ecological knowledge used for land management.

One of the first Indian Youth Service Corps projects will be in southern Arizona. Six members of the Tohono O'odham Nation will work as a crew on the Coronado National Forest.

Other work around the Southwest will include native seed collection as land managers work with scientists to reforest areas charred by wildfire.

Congresswoman Teresa Leger Fernández of New Mexico said the new corps will ultimately lead to more traditional knowledge being incorporated into future conservation efforts as participants move into leadership roles as adults.

"With this program, knowledge is going to flow both ways," she said.

Minerals to Materials How Cement is Made

Quarry

The Clarkdale Plant is surrounded by hills that are rich with high quality limestone that is quarried on site. The quarried rock contains both silica and calcium as well as deposits of volcanic material that provide alumina, iron and additional silica. All of these are necessary to make a suitable raw mix for cement.

Crush

Once quarried, the stone is trucked to the primary crusher where each type of stone is broken down and stored separately. In a secondary crusher, the stones are mixed in the correct proportion and reduced to less than 3-inch sized pieces. During this process, the rock is sampled regularly for quality. After the crushing process, this raw material is stacked.

Reclaimer

A special piece of large equipment, a digger-wheel reclaimer, retrieves the stacked rock to ensure that different types of rock are blended into a uniform feed for the kilns.

Raw Grind

The raw material is ground into a fine powder called raw feed that is sampled for chemical consistency and quality.

Heat

Raw feed is blended in the homogenizing silos and pumped into a preheater/calcliner. The feed then drops into a rotary kiln where it is heated to temperatures of at least 2750 degrees F. At these high temperatures, lime, silica, alumina, magnesia and iron oxides form new compounds and produce small, hard, spherical shaped "clinker."

Finish Grinding Mill

The clinker is cooled and stored in domes. Gypsum is added to the clinker and it is milled to a powder. The powder is cement.

Storage

Portland cement, mortar cements, and specialty grinds are pumped into storage silos on site.

Packed & Distributed

Bulk and bagged cement is distributed throughout central and northern Arizona. The location of the Clarkdale plant near the center of the state is convenient to the growing metropolitan area making concrete readily accessible and construction more affordable.

A few of the projects built with Phoenix Cement® include Glen Canyon Dam, the Central Arizona Project, Chase Field, Roosevelt Dam, I-10 and I-17 construction, Phoenix Sky Harbor International Airport, The Pavillions Shopping Center, Mingus Union High School, the Palo Verde Nuclear Generating Station, numerous high rise structures and housing developments throughout the Phoenix metropolitan area and Northern Arizona.
