

Apprenticeship Program Honors 26 Students with Journeyman Certification

After numerous hours training in a number of different trades, 26 Human Resources Apprenticeship Program graduates were honored with a special graduation event on Thursday, October 28. The Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community's Apprenticeship Program held a grab-and-go event for those who graduated in 2019, 2020 and 2021. The students earned journeyman certification in positions such as accounting technician, carpenter, computer operator, dental assistant, heavy equipment operator, IT help desk technician and medical assistant.

The graduates received a monetary award, a jacket, an etched lamp, some other gifts and a lunch.

"Each trade has different amount of required on-the-job training hours," said Workforce Development Manager James Smith. "For an example, a computer student would need 2,000 hours of on-the-job training, which is basically a year's worth of employment. A carpentry student would need 7,000 hours, and a heavy equipment operator would need 5,000 hours. Once they reach journeyman status, they are considered an expert in their particular field."

Smith continued, "They have certifications through the Department of Labor and through the State of Arizona, and the good thing is that, especially with the Department of Labor, that certification is recognizable all throughout the United States. If they ever decide to move out of the Community and go to some other state, that will definitely help them get employment."

Currently the Apprenticeship Program is focusing on enrolling new trainees in health-care fields to fill positions at the new River People Health Center.

"Our main focus these last couple of years has definitely been on healthcare: medical assistant, billing and coding, and pharmacy," Smith said. "Currently, two students are finishing their externships, which is a requirement for their certification. After that, they transition to on-the-job training. Smith added that a group of 10 individuals is currently training for HVAC, and we have some guys training to be electricians who are currently attending the Refrigeration School, Inc."

The Apprenticeship Program is open to all enrolled members of a federally recognized tribe, with preference toward Community members. This program is a great opportunity for young adults who are looking to graduate or who recently graduated from school.

"I kind of compare it to ... an associate's degree or bachelor's," said Smith. "Not everyone wants to go to a two- or four-year university. This is a great opportunity for the younger people because you can make a good living once you are a journeyman in any of these trades."

Community Continues to Monitor Educational Park Plan at Tempe Butte

Tempe Butte in downtown Tempe, also known in O'odham as Oidbaḍ Do'ag and in Piipaash as Xwe Nyakuuly, is a culturally significant site for the Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community and the Four Southern Tribes of Arizona.

Tempe Butte was added to the National Register of Historic Places in 2011 after the City of Tempe submitted a nomination which recognizes the historic functions of the butte as a religious petroglyph site and a domestic Huhugam village site.

The land surrounding the base of the butte has been largely ignored in recent years, as hikers and other foot traffic have contributed to makeshift trails, littering and destruction of natural plant habitat.

"Our Huhugam [ancestors] actually terraced the side of Oidbaḍ Do'ag, and they domesticated and grew Huhugam agave. When it rains, you can see that some of the vegetation is darker in some areas than others. The terracing [still] seems to stand out," said Community Garden Coordinator Jacob Butler.

SRPMIC Members Obtain Commercial Driver's Licenses

BY CHRIS PICCIUOLO
O'odham Action News
chris.picciuolo@srpmic-nsn.gov

Four Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community members have obtained their Class A commercial driver's licenses through the Community's Apprenticeship Program in a partnership with Southwest Truck Driver Training.

Angel Lopez, Angel Dixon (not pictured), Tony "Big Jobs" Becker and Michael Hill took the four-week course, which is designed to prepare future truck drivers for an entry-level position and beyond.

"The partnership with Southwest was amazing. They offer various training schedules that fit the students' schedules. They offered classes during the day, evening and weekends only," said SRPMIC Apprenticeship Program Manager James Smith. "Our students were able to keep their current employment and still attend school thanks to the flexible schedules. When speaking with the students, they had nothing but good things to say about Southwest: a great facility and knowledgeable instructors."

Dixon, who is currently working in a job that puts his commercial driver's license to use, was so inspired by the training that he has a long-term goal to return to Southwest Truck Driver Training and become an instructor there. That requires at least three years of driving experience.

"I want to have a diverse resume of my driving experiences," said Dixon.

Lopez plans on getting a lineman position at Arizona Public Service. "We went through everything in the training book, front to back, from general knowledge to hazardous materials," said Lopez.

Angel Lopez

Micheal Hill

Tony "Big Jobs" Becker

"We had to get our permits before we could actually get in the truck, so we took a test within the first two weeks of the four-week course."

Becker said that the classes at Southwest are great for getting drivers to learn how to drive semi trucks. "They know what they're doing," said Becker.

"They know what you need to succeed, and they are patient with you."

His next steps involve working as a heavy equipment operator, which he said is possible because the commercial driver's license opens doors for him to be qualified for that position.

Hill became interested in earning a commercial license while working at his previous job.

"There was a driver there, and he was talking to me about how much money he makes and how it is a better opportunity. I wanted to expand my experience and do something different," said Hill.

"The Community had an opportunity to get the commercial driver's license, and I took advantage of it," Hill continued. "In the beginning, it was kind of intimidating because you're driving a big truck and you have to shift those gears; but as I went on, I got to meet the workers and the instructors, and I became less intimidated as I got to meet good people. It was a good experience."

The Apprenticeship Program has been operating the Community for a few decades. When it started, there were only three trades established. Today the program trains students for 13 registered apprenticeship trades.

"We recently graduated 26 journeymen in their particular trade, have 20 currently completing their required on-the job training hours, and have 10 in classroom training," said Smith.

To obtain a Class A commercial driver's license, a driver must be at least 18 years old. Between ages 18 and 21, they can only travel within the state of Arizona. At 21, the driver can travel outside the state, transport passengers and carry hazardous materials. Drivers must also meet the medical requirements of the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Administration, which regulates trucking in the United States, and pass a Department of Transportation physical.

For more information on the Apprenticeship program, you can call (480) 362-6915.

Is Travel Safe During The Pandemic This Holiday Season?

BY DEE-ANN DURBIN
AP Business Writer

Is travel safe during the pandemic this holiday season?

It depends. It can be safe if you're fully vaccinated against COVID-19, but officials say people who haven't gotten the shots should delay travel.

Regardless of vaccination status, all travelers should keep taking precautions like avoiding indoor, unmasked crowds, says Dr. Keith Armitage, an infectious disease expert at Case Western Reserve University.

"The delta variant has really brought us back to an earlier time in the pandemic," he says.

The U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention says not to travel if you're sick, or if you tested positive for COVID-19 and your isolation period isn't over yet — even if you're fully vaccinated. Unvaccinated people who decide to travel should get a COVID-19 test one to three days before travel and three to five days after returning.

All travelers must still wear masks on trains, planes and other indoor public transportation areas, the agency says.

Airlines say plane cabins are low risk since they have good air circulation and filtration. However, there is no requirement for vaccination or testing before domestic flights, and passengers can remove their face masks while eating or drinking.

Hotels aren't risky for the vaccinated as long as they wear masks around strangers, Armitage says. More fraught are family gatherings with unvaccinated individuals, particularly for those who are older or have health problems.

Health experts suggest looking at the case levels and masking rules in the place you are visiting before you travel.

Health and Human Services Update: COVID-19 Testing, Vaccinations and the COVID-19 Vaccination Team

Quest Laboratories to have a quad test that will test for COVID, influenzas A and B, RSV and strep, all in one swab test."

As the holidays begin, the testing team is starting to see an increase in the number of positive COVID-19 cases. They encourage everyone to follow the precautions of social distancing, wearing a mask, washing their hands and getting vaccinated.

"If you're having symptoms, come in and get tested just to be on the safe side," said Kiss.

Those who have scheduled appointments take priority, although walk-ins are welcome. To make an appointment, call the COVID-19 Hotline at (480) 362-2603.

COVID-19 Vaccinations

Community Health Services Manager Marianne Bennett has been operations manager for the vaccine clinics. She and other HHS staff members have been working on getting the vaccinations out, starting with the first vaccination clinic in January 2021. Since that first clinic, they have vaccinated 17,000 people.

"We are offering all of the vaccines that are available out there. We started out with Moderna, then we added Johnson & Johnson for the single-dose option," said Bennett. "But Moderna was never approved for 12- to 17-year-olds, nor has it been approved for 5- to 11-year-olds. So, we added Pfizer to have that option for the youth and anyone else who wanted Pfizer."

The Community started giving the vaccine to children ages 5 to 11 on Tuesday, November 9, immunizing 24 children at the Salt River Clinic.

"There are 240 slots per week for the 5- to 11-year-olds at the COVID-19 Vaccine Clinic held each Friday, so there are a lot of spots to fill each week," said Bennett. "The 5- to 11-year-olds must have an appointment because the guardianship information needs to be squared away before they come to the vaccination clinic."

Parents, be sure to bring a driver's license or government-issued ID, and if your children do not have a chart at the Salt River Clinic, please bring their birth certificate along with your ID.

COVID Boosters

The SRPMIC has started offering the booster to those 65 and older and those 18 and up with underlying medical conditions that put them at higher risk for severe COVID-19.

"When you get a booster, you do not need to get the same brand [of vaccine] that you got previously; you can choose any one you want," said Bennett. "The Pfizer and Moderna are the same vaccine, just the brand name is different."

COVID Team

The COVID Team is a group of HHS, Senior Services and volunteer SRPMIC staff along with a group of Day Labor workers. They help run the SRPMIC COVID-19 Vaccination Clinics each Friday held at the Salt River Pi-Copa Gym.

"This team [consists] of those whose duties range from runners, registration and check-in to incentive staff and data-entry staff, and we have an observation team and rescue team outside as the individuals wait to see if they have any reactions to the vaccine," said Bennett.

The check-in team gives the person's paperwork to the registration team. The registration team makes sure the person is in the vaccine management system and takes the person to the vaccinator, who administers the vaccine. Community members show their tribal ID to the incentive team, who will give the individual their incentive (a debit gift card).

After they get their vaccination, people will wait in their vehicles for 15 minutes, watched over by the observation team. If they experience any complications, the observation team will flag down the Salt River Fire Department for assistance.

"At the end of the day, after making sure everyone who came to the clinic got their data entered, we have a team that takes all of the documentation for those who have charts and enters it into their medical records," explained Bennett.

"With [Community] services opening back up, we will be losing some of the workers from Senior Services," said Bennett. "We are hoping to hire some interns to help with the data entry, registration, check-in and scheduling process. We really want to have a dedicated team that can help us get these things done. If there are any interested people for the intern positions, [they should] contact the Human Resources Department."

Community Recreation Employees Move On After Years of Service

BY TASHA SILVERHORN
O'odham Action News
tasha.silverhorn2@srpmic-nsn.gov

Salt River Community Recreational Services employees Diedre Goodluck and Janyse Collins-Salinas are leaving the department after devoting years of service to the Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community. The two said their farewells on Friday, November 5, at the CRS Social Division's Mini Multi, where a number of fellow employees, parents and friends came to wish them well and good luck on their next journey.

Goodluck started working for the SRPMIC as a teacher's aide at the Early Childhood Education Center 19 years ago. Now, just short of her 20-year mark, she decided to leave to pursue her education in public communications and then earn her master's degree in organizational leadership at Northern Arizona University.

Goodluck worked with the ECEC for five years before switching over to Community Recreation Services.

"At ECEC I worked with a specific age group, and here [at Recreation] I worked with kindergarten to high school students," said Goodluck about the differences between working at both places. "But it was neat because a lot of the kids I worked with at ECEC came here and I got to see them grow up. Now some of them are adults and have babies of their own, and some have kids who come to the program today."

Goodluck said she will miss working with all the students; in particular she enjoyed seeing all the Girl Scouts go through that program. She said she will keep many memories with her, including working with Vicki Andrews and Randy Gill, having Day Camp lunches at the old Day School building, driving the big vans, and the fun she had each year at the Summer Day Camps.

"I want to say thank you to the families and participants and the SRPMIC, and it's been an honor working with the youth," said Goodluck. "I always call them the Community's most precious members. I do believe that, and it's been a great experience."

SRPMIC member Janyse Collins-Salinas has worked for the Community for four years. She started out as a temporary worker and later became a permanent employee when a position opened up.

"I was very excited and very motivated to teach the kids what I learned throughout school," said Collins-Salinas. "And I was able to do that through some special-interest classes and my groups that I got to lead with the program. So, my experience has just been a blessing and I'm just very grateful to be able to work with our Community youth."

Collins-Salinas plans on working toward providing the Community with fresh food through gardening, something she picked up working at CRS and with the Cultural Resources Department. Her passion is health and wellness, and her goal is to get back to the old ways of the O'odham through planting and growing traditional foods.

"I want to thank all the kids. A lot of times leaders are here to teach them, but it ends up that they teach us a lot of things we thought we knew but we didn't until they come into our lives and kind of make us think differently," said Collins-Salinas. "I just want to thank all the kids I was able to work with and I am grateful for that opportunity to serve our Community."

Pearl Harbor Survivor Jack Holder Visits USS Arizona Memorial Gardens

BY CHRIS PICCIUOLO
O'odham Action News
chris.picciuolo@srpmic-nsn.gov

On November 5, Pearl Harbor survivor and Chandler resident Jack Holder visited the USS Arizona Memorial Gardens at Salt River. He participated in an interview with SRPMIC.tv and Discover Salt River for their series of interviews about the Gardens and 80th anniversary of the attack on Pearl Harbor on December 7, 1941.

Holder, who was on hand to illuminate the Gardens for the first time during the official opening ceremony on February 21 of last year, talked about his experience on the day of the attack.

"I was on duty that day. We heard a screaming aircraft and a terrible explosion. We ran outside and saw all the aircraft with the "rising sun" insignia, and we knew exactly what had happened," Holder recalled.

"One of my shipmates remembered there was a sewer line behind our hangar under construction. We all ran and jumped in the ditch. One of the pilots saw us, and his machine gun fire struck the dirt pile beside the ditch. When I came out of the ditch, I saw devastation that I'll never forget. All of the battle-ships had been torpedoed. I saw seamen jumping in water that was covered in oil and on fire. Most of them died in the water; some of them died when they reached the beach. It was a sight I'll never forget."

On December 21, there will be a 100th birthday event for Holder at VFW Post 720 on 4853 E. Thomas Road in Phoenix. Tickets for the event are $20, which includes entertainment, food trucks and dessert. To complement the mood and ambiance, attendees are encouraged to dress in 1940s military and civilian attire.

Reminders about COVID-19 Safety During the Holidays

The holidays are traditionally a time of gathering with family and friends. However, as with all aspects of life in a pandemic, best safety practices require us to adjust our expectations and behaviors.

During the holidays, members of the SRPMIC can take steps to protect themselves and others by following key CDC recommendations around safer ways to celebrate the holidays.

- Protect those not yet eligible for vaccination, such as young children, by getting yourself and other eligible people around them vaccinated.
- Wear well-fitting masks over your nose and mouth
- Even those who are fully vaccinated should wear a mask in public indoor settings in communities with substantial to high transmission.
- Outdoors is safer than indoors.
- Avoid crowded, poorly ventilated spaces.
- If you are sick or have symptoms, don't host or attend a gathering.
- Get tested if you have symptoms of COVID-19 or have a close contact with someone who has COVID-19.

If you are considering traveling for a holiday or event, visit the CDC's Travel page to help you decide what is best for you and your family. CDC recommends delaying travel until you are fully vaccinated.

- If you are not fully vaccinated and must travel, follow CDC's domestic travel or international travel recommendations for unvaccinated people.
- If you will be traveling in a group or family with unvaccinated people, choose safer travel options.

- Everyone, even people who are fully vaccinated, is required to wear a mask on public transportation.

Special considerations:

- People who have a condition or are taking medications that weaken their immune system may not be fully protected even if they are fully vaccinated and have received an additional dose. They should continue to take all precautions recommended for unvaccinated people, including wearing a well-fitted mask, until advised otherwise by their health care provider.
- You might choose to wear a mask regardless of the level of transmission if a member of your household has a weakened immune system, is at increased risk for severe disease or is unvaccinated.
- If you are gathering with a group of people from multiple households and potentially from different parts of the country, you could consider additional precautions (e.g., avoiding crowded indoor spaces before travel, taking a test) in advance of gathering to further reduce risk.
- Do not put a mask on children younger than 2 years old.
- Finding new ways to celebrate and be together safely is a gift to the entire Community
- If you are sick or experiencing symptoms...Get tested and slow the spread of COVID19.

CarShop Holds Grand Opening in the Community

BY CHRIS PICCIUOLO

O'odham Action News
chris.picciuolo@srpmic-nsn.gov

On November 4, CarShop, a unique car dealership and service shop new to the Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community, held a celebratory grand opening ribbon-cutting ceremony.

CarShop is a wholly owned subsidiary of Penske Automotive Group, and it offers a no-haggle, no-hassle opportunity for customers to purchase or sell like-new vehicles with no dents or scratches.

Present at the ceremony was NASCAR driver Austin Cindric, who drives the No. 22 Ford Mustang for Team Penske, and the car itself. Usually, for this kind of event, a backup car would be on display, but the actual car used in a NASCAR race later that weekend was available to see in the service bays.

"We have a wonderful shop and service department, and I think too, with the sales side of it, everybody is welcoming and friendly," said CarShop General Manager Gary Tate.

"All of our technicians are automotive service excellence (ASE)-certified, the highest certification you can get in the industry. We have 20 bays in the back for servicing any make or model, [and] I have to stress [that] there are a lot of dealers who specialize in [only] one make or model. We sell or service any make or model."

CarShop began in 1997 in Pennsylvania and has grown to eight locations in the United States and 15 locations in the UK.

The Scottsdale/Salt River location is housed in a 45,000-square-foot building on a property that, from a Google Maps aerial view, can be seen to form the shape of a car, as pointed out by SRPMIC Council Member Michael Dallas Sr., who was present at the ribbon-cutting.

"We're just a family. I've been here since July and I've worked with a lot of the Community members, and it's been a seamless connection between the Community and CarShop," said Tate.

CarShop is offering exclusive repair and maintenance pricing for SRPMIC members and employees with 10% off. You must show your SRPMIC tribal or employee ID.

With the COVID-19 pandemic still limiting large gatherings in the Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community this year, the Community provided its members with a hot turkey dinner during the Thanksgiving Meal Drive-Thru event on Thursday, November 18. Cars lined up southbound on Longmore Road to reach the Salt River Community Building, where the food was distributed by more than 75 volunteers including Community members, employees and SRPMIC Council members.

Approximately 1,500 meals were distributed in less than an hour; 150 of those meals were picked up by Senior Services and delivered to the homes of seniors throughout the Community. The meals were prepared by Aramark and the Round House Café staff starting at 4 a.m., and distribution and cleanup were done by 6 p.m. The meal included turkey, ham, mashed potatoes, turkey gravy, stuffing, squash with cheese, pinto beans, salsa, cranberry sauce, buttered rolls and pumpkin pie.

Community Continues to Monitor Educational Park Plan at Tempe Butte

“But a lot of that is gone because of foot traffic, and the terraces just haven’t been tended to. There is also hedgehog cactus, which is endangered. This is a natural habitat for the cactus, but you can see along the trails that they are dying.”

Butler said that Community members come to Oidbad Do’ag to tell stories that are passed down.

“When you’re here telling a story, you not only tell the stories of how we existed here on this land, but also how we are associated with these archeological and historical sites,” said Butler.

“Places like Hole in the Rock, the Papago Buttes, the Estrellas and South Mountain, those places have stories and are connected to this area and the people here. We want to continue those opportunities to pass on our heritage in those stories, but with the buildings here, and the line of sight being cut off, it’s hard to do that, because you have to imagine something that you can’t see.”

In a City of Tempe Historic Preservation Commission meeting on November 10, Peter Buseck, a Tempe resident of more than 60 years, addressed everyone in attendance about a plan to restore and beautify this site.

Buseck feels that this portion of land in question has been abused, desecrated and neglected, and he wants to look into turning it into a public educational park that would preserve the land. He sought out input by local tribes and offered to pay about $1.5 million out of his own pocket for the park to be built.

However, the City of Tempe now has a different plan for the land, and it created a request for proposals (RFP) for private entities to submit bids to profit from caring for the land.

Educational Park Proposal

As an avid hiker and visitor of Tempe Butte, Buseck came up with the idea for an educational park while hiking a nature trail at Wild Horse Pass. It was there where he saw educational signage featuring the O’odham and Piipaash vocabulary words for features along the trail. Buseck considered this to be a potential model for Tempe at the foot of Tempe Butte, which he believes would attract tourists who could then learn about the tribes in the area.

Buseck said that as early as 2018, he met with City of Tempe council members and department heads to discuss ways of beautifying Tempe Butte. He said that he was told that the SRPMIC would need to be consulted, and that it would be difficult to work with the tribes, but that the City of Tempe would try to get the Community involved.

After two years without any action, Buseck learned that the City of Tempe had a (now former) historic preservation officer, John Southard, who could help him connect with the SRPMIC.

In April 2021, City of Tempe staff, which included Southard and Deputy Community Development Director Alex Smith, met with Buseck, Butler and SRPMIC Tribal Historic Preservation Officer Shane Anton to discuss Buseck’s proposal.

The next step was to create a detailed landscape plan. The firm Logan Simpson, which specializes in landscape architecture, environmental planning and tribal consultation services, was identified as a potential consultant.

Buseck said that he offered to pay for the plan to sidestep bureaucratic roadblocks, and that both the City of Tempe and SRPMIC knew of and approved of this effort.

Butler helped Logan Simpson’s landscape architect by making suggestions for plants to be incorporated into the proposed park. In an area that is already mostly developed, Butler feels that a plan like this would be a perfect opportunity to save the portion of land that isn’t developed.

Logan Simpson prepared the plan, and on September 10, after some revisions, the conceptual design for the park was completed and sent to the City of Tempe.

Later on the very same day, the city issued RFP No. 22-050 for a private lease and development opportunity to be bid on by interested parties. The RFP includes the same land that is in the conceptual plan for the park.

“This [park plan] was deemed compatible with tribal traditions and shows respect for tribes. It would be good for Tempe. And so it seemed like a win-win situation,” Buseck told O’odham Action News.

“Then, out came the RFP, which I felt blindsided by. And all of the sudden, all of the discussion of the park was frozen [by the City of Tempe]. I just feel that’s wrong.”

The City of Tempe said in a statement that they have no comment on what happened with Buseck’s proposed plan, or if it was received by the proper channels at the city.

City of Tempe’s RFP

RFP No. 22-050 was issued on September 10, with a deadline for inquiries and questions of October 8. The deadline for proposals to be submitted was November 4.

The RFP states that it is for the “lease and development of city-owned land consisting of approximately 5 acres comprising the Hayden Flour Mill located at the southeast corner of Mill Avenue and Rio Salado Parkway, Tempe, Arizona.”

This land, according to the city, is the “disturbed” portion of the butte, roughly 1,180 feet above mean sea level, with potential areas of undisturbed portions of the butte along the rail cut and former quarry area.

Within the RFP, the city asked the interested parties to “incorporate significant archaeological features, integrating both arts and cultural elements that tell the story of the property’s rich history, represent the full diversity of Tempe’s founding citizens, and respect the Butte’s significance to the O’odham, Piipaash, and their Ancestors.”

Tempe is seeking to enter into a long-term master lease that allows the city to remain the owner and ultimate steward of the Hayden Flour Mill. In exchange, the master lease would give the joint-venture development team full creative and managerial control of the property’s design, programming, construction, financial strategy, subleasing, operations and maintenance.

In section IV of the RFP, the city states that, for this particular parcel of land, it is seeking “creative, feasible proposals for the rehabilitation of the mill and silos and the redevelopment and reuse of the remainder of the 5-acre City-owned parcel into a mix of uses for a family-friendly project designed to appeal to all ages and reflecting the rapidly evolving lifestyle environment of Downtown Tempe.”

The City of Tempe told O’odham Action News that according to state procurement law, only the names of entities responding to an RFP can be revealed at the time the RFP closes.

The City of Tempe received two submissions: the team of Venue Projects

Looking down from Tempe Butte to the area mentioned in both Peter Buseck's plan and the City of Tempe's RFP plan. This part of the butte (bottom middle of photo) shows remnants of a terrace where agave was traditionally harvested using rainwater that fell from the top of the butte. Stories are traditionally told from this location, where the different mountain ranges and sites are now blocked by some tall buildings downtown.

and Sunbelt Holdings, as well as DMB Associates. The city is evaluating a variety of options that could be undertaken to incorporate this proposal into any future project.

“While the submittal is evaluated, and the city engages in intensive due diligence, Tempe representatives cannot discuss the matter. As the City wants to be a good steward of this iconic property, consideration of these proposals may take months,” said City of Tempe Public Information Officer Kris Baxter-Ging.

Now that the RFP due date has passed, all parties will be keeping an eye on the results of the submissions.

City of Tempe Land Acknowledgement

On January 14, the City of Tempe passed a land acknowledgement resolution that recognizes present-day Tempe as being culturally affiliated with the O’odham, Piipaash and their ancestors, which means that the city takes into consideration local tribal input when it comes to land-use decisions, ceremonies, educational endeavors and holiday observances.

You can read the full land acknowledgement at <https://oan.srpmic-nsn.gov/city-of-tempe-acknowledges-oodham-and-piipaash-land/>.

In January, City of Tempe spokesperson Nikki Riley told O’odham Action News that Tempe has a history of working in partnership with the Four Southern Tribes in particular as it relates to the care and maintenance of Tempe Butte/Oidbad Do’ag.

“In recent years in that area, we have collaborated to [remove] underground power lines, remove communication towers from the summit, minimize the visual impact of the water tanks and clean up graffiti,” Riley said. “In addition, we are proud to work collaboratively on responsible, respectful archaeological work when planning, approving and building public or private developments. Tempe also reserves a seat on the city’s Desert Conservation Commission for a representative from a tribal nation.”

The city said that any development plans that would affect Tempe’s historic buildings would be subject to review by that commission.

Anton, who had a hand in helping Buseck with his proposed park plan, said that the SRPMIC Tribal Historic Preservation Office was pleased with the City of Tempe’s commitment to base land-use and development decisions partly on the Community’s cultural heritage views.

“We were equally pleased when they memorialized this commitment by providing a resolution acknowledging the same,” said Anton.

“But recently [we have questioned] that commitment, when discrepancies in what we understood to be cultural and historic review processes were ignored or bypassed. Our office also aligned with Mr. Peter Buseck’s offer to naturally beautify and restore its health as a traditional cultural property (TCP) by funding a landscape mitigation project for Oidbad Do’ag. As much of Tempe (and metro Phoenix, for that matter) is exploding in economic development and urban growth, areas of open space, parks, and known places of traditional and cultural significance need to be protected and enhanced to provide a balance and sense of well-being to all who reside here.”

Anton said that those discrepancies refer to the omission of this project going through otherwise normal procedures.

After discussions with Southard, Anton said that he understood that most or all economic development projects get notice and review by the City of Tempe’s Historic Preservation Office, and occasionally the city’s Historic Preservation Committee, to ensure compliance with city, state and sometimes federal regulations.

“We [the Tribal Historic Preservation Office] had a great working relationship with the city’s Historic Preservation Office,” said Anton.

“We understand that we are no longer the only people here and we should do our best to work cooperatively with our neighboring cities ... this should include adherence to policies of cultural review and communication on projects, especially those that we have made known to our neighbors are especially sensitive and important. Based on what has transpired regarding Tempe’s RFP 22-050 and Mr. Buseck’s offer, I struggle to believe this is being done.”

The City of Tempe said in a statement to O’odham Action News that the city does not have a standard written policy to consult with tribes on land disturbing activities.

This fall, six Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community youth participated on the Mesa Jackrabbits 10U football team: Santos Cervantes (#47), Roan Enos (#20), Adrian Amaya-Luzanilla (#25), Ziggy Camacho (#10), Maddyn Chiago (#24) and Ethan Thomas (#15). For some it was their first time playing football, while others have returned to the football field after playing on other teams for the last few years. The Jackrabbits had a 4-3 record and made the playoffs, but they lost after the first round. The team is looking for more players so they can create more teams for different age groups. Journey to Wellness Event at SRPMIC

O'odham Action News
chris.picciuolo@srpmic-nsn.gov

During November 15-18, the Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community's Diabetes Prevention Services and FitnessFest held a Journey to Wellness event remotely on Zoom for about 55 participants a day.

Before the event, participants picked up a goodie bag at the main campus of Diabetes Prevention Services, which included the materials for them to use on each day of the event.

"November is Diabetes Awareness Month, so these conferences allow for us to bring in outside speakers and to also showcase what services we offer," said Diabetes Prevention Services Manager Elissa Caston.

"Sharing information and tools that the Community can use is very important to me. We want to support and assist individuals in their wellness journey, no matter where they are. Behavioral change is always a challenge when [people first start on their wellness journey], so support in making healthy habit changes is needed."

Janice Jaicks, CEO of FitnessFest, hosted the events, which seem to have better engagement virtually, possibly because people feel more comfortable in their own homes.

"The topics and the speakers are so relevant," said Jaicks. "The bonding, inspiration and the sense of community was really felt."

Before the COVID-19 pandemic, these conferences were offered as one-day events at different locations. Here is a breakdown of the week's activities.

The first day featured a cooking demonstration in which participants learned how to make "no-fry" blue corn frybread and a pinto bean spread with chefs Lois Ellen Frank and Walter Whitewater. Everyone in attendance cooked along with the chefs and showed their frybread at the end of the session. The reason for using these ingredients was that they are more nutritious than traditional frybread. All ingredients for the cooking session were included in the goodie bag.

Tuesday

Master trainer Amanda Phan led an event that introduced Pound, a high-energy exercise that uses Ripstix, which are specially weighted drumsticks. This cardio jam session allowed participants to move to the music while pretending to play the music at the same time.

Waylon Pahona (top) and Johanna Corpeno (bottom) demonstrate various stretching exercises.

If you want to try out the Pound workout, SRPMIC members can get 30 days free by using the code "SALTRIVER21" at www.poundfit.com/backstage.

Wednesday

This day was divided into two events. The first event was "How to Live Life Powerfully," a yoga-infused workout with Johanna Corpeno and Waylon Pahona. The workout used a yoga block and a strap that was used for special stretch exercises. Corpeno and Pahona also shared an empowering talk about ways to deal with stress, cultivating a positive mindset, and how nutrition plays a role in your personal motivation.

The second part of the event was for men only. The topic was "Building Healthy Indigenous Masculinity" and was hosted by Pahona and Eric Hardy. The hosts spoke from the heart about their journey through loss, toxic masculinity, assault and family issues. Participants were inspired to share their own journeys after hearing the hosts' stories.

Thursday

The last session, hosted by Deonoveigh Mitchell, was called "Self-Care Journaling" and was an hour dedicated to learning creative tips and techniques for writing and drawing for Mitchell owns the H.E.R. Medicine Shop (which stands for Heal. Empower. Rise.) in Scottsdale. The purposes of journaling were discussed, which include goal-tracking, making lists, personal writing, doodling, organizing, planning, reflecting and brain dumping.

For the event, participants used wash tape, a canvas bag, a ruler and a special notebook to write down goals and write letters to themselves.

A Day in the Life of a Salt River Firefighter

BY CHRIS PICCIUOLO
O'odham Action News
chris.picciuolo@srpmic-nsn.gov

There is a certain charm to Salt River Fire Department (SRFD) Station 291 on Osborn Road. Built in 1981, it is the oldest of the four fire stations in the Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community.

Being in the heart of the SRPMIC's government operations and central to many residences and businesses near the freeway, Station 291 usually gets the most emergency calls.

As you walk into the station, you will often see the crew sitting on recliners in the living room, waiting for an emergency call while watching television and eating a meal that was cooked in the adjacent kitchen. When I visited, the crew was watching the classic holiday movie "Elf."

The stations are a second home for the first responders, who work about three days a week in 24-hour shifts.

Every morning at 7:45, a new shift, or battalion, comes in to relieve the crew who came in at 7:45 a.m. on the previous day. There are three shifts total, A, B and C, and all shifts rotate between the stations. A battalion chief oversees the stations.

The standard crew number per station at any given time is six in total; however, due to staffing issues, there were five per station when I visited.

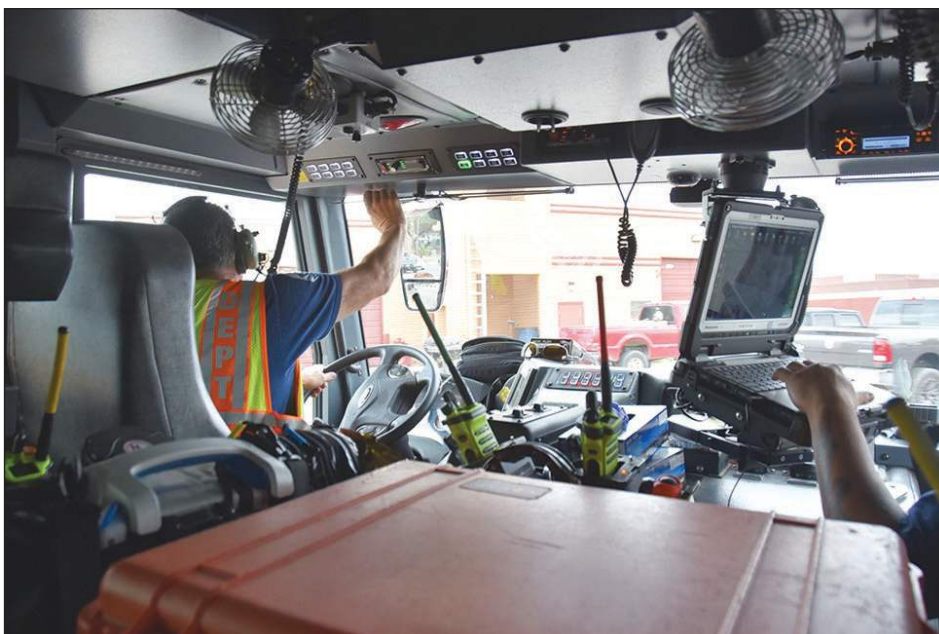

Every station has a captain, an engineer and firefighters. Engineers drive the fire trucks, but they can also fill in as firefighters.

Firefighter and paramedic Jared Miles, who was the acting captain on the day I was at Station 291, gave me a tour of the station, starting at the computer room. This is where paramedics, firefighters, engineers and captains check their email and enter their reports and information into incident software that is similar to what the Salt River Police Department uses.

When there is an emergency call, a large screen above the computers will display the address of the incident, which unit number is dispatched, and the incident type, whether it is an emergency medical services (EMS) call, a house fire or a motor vehicle incident.

Because each shift lasts 24 hours, there are sleeping quarters, or bunks, available for crew members to rest. In the case of an emergency call while they're sleeping, a light bar installed in each bunk will light up in bright red and a sound will come from a speaker next to the light.

"We now have what they call 'heart

Station 291 crew returning to the back of the station to park in the bay after an emergency call.

Station 291 crew Immanuel Chavez and Jared Miles get ready for an emergency call in real time.

The workout room, which is converted from the old bay, and still has the original garage doors.

Firefighter and paramedic Jared Miles talks about the different kinds of clothing worn during an emergency call.

tones," said Miles. "[The previous tone system] that was being used contributed to an increase of heart attacks in firefighters because the sudden high-pitched sound [caused] a [sudden] jolt of energy. Years of [exposure to] that sound can cause cardiac issues. Heart tones start low and gradually get louder."

There are also speakers in the living room, the kitchen and the weight room. The weight room was converted from the old bay that used to house fire trucks, and it still has masonry walls and garage doors for an old-school feel.

Miles then showed me the hose tower attached to the station in the back. The hose tower is a tall brick structure similar to a bell tower that is used to hang the long firehoses to dry.

As we waited for an emergency call,

Miles took me to the bay to show me what the scene looks like when firefighters prepare for a response.

"At the beginning of the shift, everyone knows where their positions are," said Miles as he was putting on EMS boots and "response pants," a type of personal protective equipment.

"The SRFD is unique in the way that we have two sets of gear. You will have your original set of gear; that is your newer version. The second set is your older set. The reason [for the two sets] is to reduce cancer-causing carcinogenic exposure. In the fire service, cancer is huge. It's the No. 1 cause of death of firefighters."

Miles said that the current rate of cancer diagnosis for firefighters at the SRFD is one crew member per year.

After a house fire, first responders will take off their gear, throw it in a garbage bag and place it in the back of the fire truck. The gear is then immediately taken back to the station to be cleaned in large industrial washing machines.

During the late afternoon, some of the crew headed out to grab food. Firefighters can either bring their own meals and ingredients to heat up or cook in the kitchen, or some will pick up take-out and bring it back.

Just as the movie "Major League II" started on the television, an emergency call finally came in over the speakers.

The crew put on their gear and the engineer started the fire truck and opened the bay doors. The captain hopped up into the front passenger seat as I joined a firefighter in the back cab of the truck and buckled up. The other firefighters got in the ambulance, and the whole crew took off in what felt like just a few seconds.

I put on a pair of communications headphones hanging in the truck and listened in on the call. The truck headed west on Osborn Road. Then another dispatch came through saying that emergency crews were no longer needed for the call.

The fire truck turned back to the station and one firefighter joked to me, "It's the curse of a 'ride-along.'" However, I was relieved that at least nobody was seriously injured.

The bay doors opened up from the back and we pulled back into Station 291 to park. The adrenaline began to wear off as the crew exited the vehicles, took off their gear and breathed a collective sigh of relief until the next call.

Special Domestic Violence Criminal Jurisdiction Proposed Amendments to the Salt River Code of Ordinances

90-Day Comment Period, November 3, 2021 – January 26, 2022

Summary of Proposed Amendments to the Salt River Code of Ordinances – The proposed amendments would enable the Community to implement special domestic violence criminal jurisdiction, which would allow the Community to prosecute non-Native American offenders for crimes involving domestic violence and violation of a protection order when the victim is Native American and the defendant has sufficient ties to the Community. Sufficient ties to the Community could be either (1) resides within the Community, (2) employed within the Community, or (3) in a relationship with a Community member or Indian resident. The proposed changes are required by federal law in order to prosecute non-Native American offenders for these crimes. The proposed code changes are:

- Ordinance 4-31(a)(3): Require appointment of a licensed judge to preside over all cases in which any defendant is charged with at least one Class A Offense, in all cases in which the maximum punishment could exceed one year of incarceration, and in all cases in which a defendant is charged with domestic violence, special domestic violence or violation of an order of protection.
- Ordinance 5-35(d)(1) & 5-35(d)(2): Creates a new jury pool that would apply only in cases in which a non-Indian defendant is charged with special domestic violence (domestic violence, aggravated domestic violence or violation of a protective order). This jury pool would be comprised of adult Community Members, as well as adult employees of the Community (includes non-Indians and enrolled tribal members from other native communities). The jury pool for all remaining cases would remain unchanged, and would be comprised only of adult Community Members.

- Rule of Criminal Procedure 6: Ensures that a licensed defense attorney would be appointed to represent every defendant charged with domestic violence, special domestic violence or a violation of an order of protection.
- Rule of Criminal Procedure 17.1: Technical amendment that references 5-35. Anytime an amendment to the numbering in 5-35 is enacted, Rule 17.1 also needs to be amended so that the reference is accurate.
- Ordinance 10-258: Creates the offense of Special Domestic Violence Criminal Jurisdiction so the Community can assert criminal jurisdiction over non-Indian offenders who commit crimes of domestic violence and violations of orders of protection that occur within the Community boundaries, so long as certain legal criteria are met.

These proposed ordinance changes are open for public comment from November 3, 2021 until January 26, 2022, and will be discussed at Council District Meetings throughout November and December of 2021 and January of 2022. The proposed code amendments can be located at <https://www.srpmic-nsn.gov/government/ogc/proposed-ordinances/>.

Please submit any questions or comments to Jeff Harmon at jeff.harmon@srpmic-nsn.gov or (480) 362-5409. All comments will be presented to Council at the end of the public comment period.

Savvy Senior

Social Security Calculators That Can Help You Decide When to Claim

Dear Savvy Senior,

Can you recommend some good resources that can help my wife and me determine the best claiming ages for maximizing our Social Security retirement benefits?
Just Turned 62

Dear 62,

Deciding when to start collecting your Social Security benefits is one of the most complicated and consequential decisions in retirement. The difference between a good decision and a poor one could cost you and your wife tens of thousands of dollars over your retirement, so doing your due diligence now is a very smart move.

Factors to Consider

As you may already know, you can claim Social Security any time between the ages of 62 and 70, but each year you wait increases your benefits between 5 and 8 percent. However, there are other factors you need to take into account to help you make a good decision, like your health and family longevity, whether you plan to work in retirement, along with spousal and survivor benefits.

To help you weigh your claiming strategies, you need to know that Social Security Administration claims specialists are not trained or authorized to give you personal advice on when you should start drawing your benefits. They can only provide you information on how the system works under different circumstances. To get advice you'll need to turn to other sources.

Online Tools

Your first step in getting Social Security claiming strategy advice is to go to SSA.gov/myaccount to get your personalized statement that estimates what your retirement benefits will be at ages 62 through 70. These estimates are based on your yearly earnings that are also listed on your report.

Once you get your estimates for both you and your wife, there are a number online Social Security strategy calculators you can turn to that can compare your options so you can make an informed decision.

The best one that's completely free to use is Open Social Security (OpenSocialSecurity.com), which runs the math for each possible claiming age (or, if you're married, each possible combination of claiming ages) and reports back, telling you which strategy is expected to provide the most total spendable dollars over your lifetime.

But if you want a more thorough analysis consider fee-based calculators like Maximize My Social Security (MaximizeMySocialSecurity.com) or Social Security Solutions (SocialSecuritySolutions.com). Both of these tools, which are particularly helpful to married couples as well as divorced or widowed persons, will run what-if scenarios based on your circumstances and show how different filing strategies affect the total payout over the same time frame.

Maximize My Social Security's web-based service costs $40 per year for a household, while Social Security Solutions offers several levels of web-based and personalized phone advice ranging from $20 to $250.

In-Person Advice

You may also be able to get help through a financial planner. Look for someone who is a fee-only certified financial planner (CFP) that charges on an hourly basis and has experience in Social Security analysis.

To find someone, use the National Association of Personal Financial Advisors online directory at NAPFA.org, or try the Garrett Planning Network (GarrettPlanningNetwork.com), which is a network of fee-only advisers that charge between $150 and $300 per hour.

Send your senior questions to: Savvy Senior, P.O. Box 5443, Norman, OK 73070, or visit SavvySenior.org. Jim Miller is a contributor to the NBC Today show and author of "The Savvy Senior" book.
